AGITATION in the rubber business. One great rubber company, although it has plenty of money, passes its preferred stock dividend waiting to see what will turn up. The British abandon the attempt to monopolize rubber and prices will drop.

THE rubber companies might find a way to distribute tires more cheaply. If it cost as much proportio ately to sell automobiles as it does to sell tires, a $700 car would cost $1,500.

General Motors, willing to try anything and usually succeeding, may turn up as an automobile tire manufacturer.

MERCEDES GLEITZ swam the Strait of Gibraltar on Wednesday, from Spain to Africa, 27 miles. The lady is a typewriter—and that's the interesting part. You marvel that a woman leading a sedentary life should be so athletic. Typewriting develops nervous energy. And dealing with dull or ill-tempered employers develops mental determination. That explains it.

MANY old people long to retire from the world and escape observation.

Tolstoy, toward the last, wandered away from his family, to be alone.

James Swinnerton has painted an old Indian on the Western desert, retiring into a cave as he felt death coming, with just strength enough left to block the mouth with a stone, and keeping out coyotes, wishing to die alone.

In Vermont an old woman dies, having lived a recluse more than 20 years.

A strange desire. The grave promises solitude sufficiently complete to suit anybody. And it will come.

JUDGE BUFFINGTON, of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, recommends the whipping post for criminals. The whip frightens the criminals, usually physical cowards, and a lashing would cause a gang leader to lose caste with his class, as Judge Kavanagh of Chicago, says.

The important question is: would the whipping, encouraging and setting an example of brutality, breed more crime?

IF THE whipping post comes into general use, it should be a mechanical whipping post, delivering blows of definite, legally established strength. Under our grafting system, a small fee would make the beating mild, failure to pay would be well punished.

IN THE "Judgment of God" trials in the Middle Ages there was much cheating. An influential bishop, for instance, was sentenced to prove his innocence and morality by walking barefoot on red hot ploughshares. The ploughshares were painted red, not heated. That cleared the bishop, nobly vindicated.

THE talented Russians have some queer ideas, including ideas of humor. The story about an Armenian shooting Trotzky was an April Fool joke.

The learned writer of "The Golden Bough" tells of Russian peasants in the spring time seizing their priest, rolling him over and over in the mud across newly planted fields to increase the crops, and saying to the patient preacher of the Greek Church, "Don't object, little father, you live on our crops, so help us to make them better."

THE brokers are off for a three-day rest, defying the bears and all the powers of darkness. They will come back Monday morning and then you will know how they and their speculating friends feel about the future of the U. S. A.

A BAD little boy told his mother, "I didn't pray last night or the night before. I am not going to pray tonight. Then if nothing happens I am not going to pray any more."

The Wall Street enthusiasts didn't sell last month, or the month before, they are not going to sell now and if nothing happens they are NEVER GOING TO SELL. That's how they feel.

BRITAIN plans gigantic bombing planes, each with gun turrets on the wings, one on each wing tip, one in the center.

Gunners in the flying turrets would have no "blind spots," perfect vision in all directions. Their quick-firing guns would fight off swifter pursuit planes attacking, while they dropped bombs on the cities below.

FORTUNATELY these planes are not planned to attack us. We are about as well prepared to receive them as a rabbit in an open field to receive half a dozen eagles.

GOV. SMITH vetoes a bill that would prevent development of important water power and does it wisely. Nature lovers say the scenery around the proposed hydro-electric development is beautiful, and they don't want it disturbed.

There is plenty of beautiful scenery, but not plenty of electric power. What there is should be used.

MRS. MEDILL McCORMICK is a candidate for congressman-at-large in Illinois. Citizens will take satisfaction in voting for her and she will represent the state ably, inheriting ability from her father, Mark Hanna.

Snow for Easter

WEATHER PROMISE GLOOMY

A lagging storm out of the West that completely upset Easter predictions of weather experts here and in Washington spread dismay among owners of new frocks and bonnets today.

The storm was slated to sweep by this region last night. Instead it tarried over the plains and today moved in slowly. Rain which began falling this morning will continue today and likely will change to snow and colder tomorrow, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, of the local weather bureau, predicted.

"Too bad," mourned Brotzman. "It is raining today out to the Mississippi and beyond the rain belt is snow. There is a chance that the storm will speed up and pass over tonight by way of the St. Lawrence Valley, but it looks like a forlorn hope."

"Rain and colder tonight," says the official forecast; "Sunday light rain or snow and colder."

Galoshes, furs and overcoats will have the call, it seems.

FAIR IN EAST

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP.)—The Middle Atlantic states will continue to enjoy fair weather through Easter, but to the northward of Washington and extending into the outer edges of the lake region it appears to the weather bureau that rains will threaten new Easter finery.

New England probably will be visited by intermitten showers all day easter Sunday. In the lakes region proper cloudiness will be varied with snow flurries. In southwestern United States the forecasters

SYLVIA PANKHURST

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, militant English suffragette leader, who opposes modern marriage as a "relic of the barbaric age" and a fetter to women's freedom, has advertised in the London Daily Herald the birth of a baby, Richard Kier Pethick Pankhurst, born before Christmas. The father's identity is secret and London is abuzz. He's believed to be an American.

LAXITY CHARGE IS MADE

Dr. Joseph R. Conover, county medical director for the state, and the Snowden Township School Board, are at loggerheads over enforcing the smallpox quarantine in the Pittsburgh Coal Company camp at Mine No. 10 at Library.

Despite Dr. Conover's assurance to the board that there is no danger of the disease spreading among the children, the Stewart Public School has been closed "indefinitely until county and state officials prove to the school board that the smallpox quarantine is in force," according to a statement issued by the board following a meeting last night.

Refusal of coal and iron police in the employ of the Pittsburgh Coal Company to recognize Dr. Conover's authority in appointing a school board watchman for the houses under quarantine is declared to be the chief reason for the board's action. This coupled with Dr. Conover's failure to notify the school board, members of the board allege, of each case of smallpox within 24 hours after it is reported to the county medical director, has given the school board cause for alarm, and at last night's meeting the members voted unanimously for the closing of the school "to safeguard the children of the community."

5 HOMES QUARANTEED

Only two smallpox cases have been reported to the school board, according to Prof. A. F. Baker, principal of the Stewart school. One was reported last Tuesday and the other on Thursday, although Prof. Baker says both cases developed some time around the middle of March. Five houses are under quarantine in the coal company settlement, members of the board declare.

The two latest cases were reported to Dr. Conover on March 30, he said yesterday. Both are mild, he assured. Martha Carrington, 35, Negress, of House 271, and Mrs. Hazel Smith, 21, of House 220, are the victims, he said, and the state department of health is in charge of both cases.

Prof. Baker says he has no record of these two cases, nor the fifth case. The school principal says Dr. Conover is required by law to notify the school board of these cases within 24 hours.

Several members of the school board visited the Pittsburgh Coal Company houses the first part of this week to check on the number of houses under quarantine and to investigate rumors that no guards were kept on the houses. An insurance man, it was reported to the board, walked to the door of one of the quarantined houses without being warned until he noticed a small placard tacked alongside the door. The board mem-

2 BURNED TO DEATH IN MYSTERY MINE FIRE

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., April 7.—The charred bodies of Charles Johns, 51, and his son, George, 19, were found in the ruins of their frame shanty, near the J. C. Wardman mine, four miles north of here, early today, following a mysterious explosion and fire.

The father and son worked at the mine, small workings operated by Wardman with the aid of about six men. They lived in the shed nearby.

Farmers in the vicinity heard the blast shortly after midnight, and found the shack in flames. After the fire had died they discovered the two bodies.

Find Youth, Dynamite In Bed

MEYERSDALE, Pa., April 7.—Edward Herwig, 18, expelled student, was arrested when police heard he had threatened to dynamite the high school building. He was in bed with 10 sticks of dynamite under the covers when police took him.

Police were mystified by a blast that shook several houses early Thursday, but they have no evidence that Herwig was involved.

8 Found Burned, Slain

International News Service.

CISCO, Tex., April 7.—The bodies of R. N. Jackson, 40, his wife and six children were found burned to death in their farm home, five miles west of here, today. The throat of one of the daughters was slashed and another's skull bashed.

Authorities believe the victims were murdered and the home set fire to hide the crime.

Falling timbers could possibly have crushed the second daughter's skull, authorities stated, but unmistakeable evidence of an attack was found in the debris.

The children's names were Catherine, 12; Glady, 10; Dorothy Glenn, 8; Jimmy Dillon, 6, and twin babies, aged 14 months.

The blaze started shortly before midnight. The bodies of the children were badly burned. The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson showed no marks of violence.

Feeling was intense as neighbors for miles around gathered. Charles Jackson, a brother of the husband and father, conferred with authorities.

An inquest was ordered.

BLAZING GAS TRUCK CUTS TELEPHONE LINES

CLARION, Pa., April 7.—Flames from a burning gasoline truck on the Lakes-to-Sea Highway, near Shippensville, late yesterday, burned cables and cut off that town from telephone and electric service. Hundreds of passing motorists saw the blazing truck, owned by the Sterling Oil Company.

"BAUMES LAW" FOR PA. VOTED BY JURISTS

By HOWARD CASSIDY,
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—Radical measures for the suppression of crime in Pennsylvania are demanded by judges and district attorneys of the state, assembled in conference here.

Adoption by Pennsylvania of a modified form of the severe Baumes law of New York to remove habitual criminals as a menace to society, blazing a new trail for the jury of antiquity by giving 10 jurors the power of decision as a mortal blow at jury tampering, and repeal of the Ludlow act, which fixes a minimum sentence at half the maximum, were among a series of outstanding recommendations voted yesterday.

Important subjects are scheduled for consideration at the closing session today of this extraordinary assemblage, constituting virtually the entire body of Pennsylvania bench and public prosecutors. Heavier penalties for "hit-an-run" drivers and fixing at murder of the second degree wanton and reckless automobile killings are on the list for action.

GARDNER ACTIVE

An important part was taken in the deliberations by the delegation from Allegheny county. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner dominated the gathering of district attorneys in two important decisions. His unexpected assault on jury tampering, not on the schedule, was approved unanimously.

He proposed that the conference indorse a vote of 10 out of 12 jurors as sufficient to reach a verdict, except in capital cases. His attitude favoring a modified "Baumes law"

Workman Killed by Train

His head bowed under the burden of worry over a long string of misfortunes, one of which was an accident which cost him his right leg, Frank Heilig, 75, of 4562 Carroll street, took a short cut across the railroad tracks at Leetsdale this morning. He failed to see an eastbound passenger train and was struck and killed.

Heilig worked at the Leetsdale plant of the Riter-Conley Manufacturing Company, and with other employes rode to that town from Pittsburgh daily on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad. This morning, worried over the prolonged illness of his wife, he set out alone across the tracks instead of taking the longer and safer route with the other men.

GERMANS READY TO HOP

International News Service.

DUBLIN, April 7.—After all preparations had been made and a definite time for a take-off had been set, unruly weather today prevented the monoplane Bremen from starting on its attempt to span the Atlantic Ocean in a westward flight.

Capt. Hermann Koehl had announced last night that weather conditions seemed favorable and that the attempt would be made at noon today, but at that hour reports were received which caused him to announce another postponement.

Although it appeared unlikely that an attempt would be made later today, the plane was held in readiness for an immediate hop-off, if later reports were favorable.

Commandant James Fitzmaurice, the Irish Free State air chief, will accompany Koehl and Humbert Von Huenefeld, acting as relief pilot, it was officially announced. He has received a leave of absence from the Irish government for the flight and is taking the place of Arthur Spindler, the German pilot, who originally was to have spelled Koehl on the trip.

The Bremen received a final tuning up last night, and the fliers declared the motor was in perfect condition for the trip. In compliance with an Irish government regulation, a doctor, priest and fire engine were brought to the Baldonnel Field to be on hand at the take-off.

FRENCHMAN SET

PARIS, April 7.—There was much conjecture here today as to whether Lieut. Michael De Troyat's 700-mile flight yesterday was in preparation for a long-distance flight on a trans-Atlantic hop, but the latter theory was given general credence.

"The Lone Falcon" made a circuitous flight which carried him south from Le Bourget Airdrome to Marseilles. From there he swung northward, passing Lyons and landing at Dijon, nine hours after his start.

Mystery surrounds the mechanical details of De Troyat's plane. It is said to be similar in design to Col. Charles Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, and capable of making 115 miles an hour.

The arrival here of Sergt. Maj. Antoine Paillard, a noted war pilot, in his new monoplane Red Bird, with a 600-horsepower motor, said to be capable of a sustained flight of 46 hours, gave rise to other trans-Atlantic rumors.

Another report was that the French navy was preparing a monoplane for a flight to New York.

"BAUMES LAW" FOR PENNA.

for Pennsylvania with traditional discretion vested in the courts instead of the mandatory life sentence on fourth conviction of felony as in New York, influenced the prosecuting officials to agree unanimously on such a recommendation.

The conference of judges voted decisively in favor of a similar recommendation. Both conferences voted for the repeal of the Ludlow act after it was condemned as a deterrant to criminal prosecution and an element in the protection of criminals.

The conference of judges, the first of its kind in the history of Pennsylvania, established a precedent. Virtually the entire membership of the Supreme and Superior courts, the Common Pleas courts of 67 counties and the County and Municipal courts was represented by the 127 jurists who attended.

OTHERS FROM ALLEGHENY

Judges Richard W. Martin and James B. Drew, of Allegheny county, took a prominent part in the debates. Other Allegheny county jurists in attendance were Judges Josiah Cohen, Frank P. Patterson and Elder W. Marshall of Common Pleas Court, and Judges Sylvester J. Snee and Samuel J. McKim, of County Court. With district attorneys from 57 of the 67 counties of the state in attendance.

The conference, opening jointly and deliberating in adjoining rooms of the Supreme Court in City Hall, were characterized as the most serious effort in generations to repel the advances of crime.

The recommendations of both conferences were referred to the Pennsylvania Penal Commission for preparation for the 1929 Legislature. The commission met last night at the Penn Athletic Club. On this commission are Representative William E. Stadtlander, of Pittsburgh, and Judge J. Frank Graff, of Kittanning.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The drastic revision of penal code and practice favored by the conference of judges included these recommendations:

1—Amend the law to permit trial by a judge with a jury in certain classes of criminal cases when the accused voluntarily waives his right to trial by jury.

2—Gives trial judge in capital cases the sole right to examine prospective jurors, preventing exhaustion of a panel, saving 80 per cent of time now required by counsel and preventing abuse and undue influence in examinations.

3—Permit police and court records of substantial evidential value to be introduced by district attorneys in criminal trials to inform a jury that the defendant is a professional or habitual criminal.

4—Give trial judge in capital cases discretion as to the severance of trials for two or more defendants.

5—Appeals in criminal cases should be required in three weeks instead of 45 days, as at present, and, unless a constitutional question is involved all appeals in criminal cases should be subject to allowance by a judge of the Appellate Court.

6—On granting a new trial in criminal cases, the trial judge must certify of record an opinion that the evidence was insufficient to warrant the conviction or that an error of law was material.

7—Abolish the law preventing a district attorney from commenting on the failure of one on trial for crime to take the witness stand in his own behalf. This last measure was also approved by the conference of district attorneys, Gardner speaking in its support.

AMENDMENT NEEDED

The proposal for reducing the number of votes for a jury verdict from 12 to 10, except in capital cases, advanced successfully by Gardner, involves a constitutional amendment.

Speaking of this proposal, Gardner declared it would form an effective check on jury-fixing, which has agitated Allegheny county in recent months.

"In one important criminal case in Allegheny county in recent months, 11 jurors on retiring immediately voted for a highly-justified verdict of guilty, but one juror hung the jury for two days for a disagreement," Gardner declared.

Ardent espousal of adoption of the Baumes law plan was enunciated by prosecuting attorneys from a number of counties, indicating a general approval of the stringent provisions of that law, until Gardner "put on the brakes." He declared the discretion of the courts should be preserved and expressed favor for a law providing for increasing penalties for successive convictions. The resolution, as finally adopted, recommended enactment of a law providing for heavily-increased penalties for third and subsequent convictions. These were not confined to felonies. Details of the proposed law were not stipulated but the debate favored increasing the penalty to life imprisonment, within the discretion of the courts.

In the conference of judges, doubling the penalty for each conviction was proposed and favored. Absurdity of the distinction in Pennsylvania between misdemeanors and felonies was emphasized in the debate of both conferences, as was the lack of co-ordinated statistical data throughout the state comparable with that of New York. Pennsylvania is suffering from the New York law, as it has driven criminals into other states, it was argued. It was generally agreed that the Baumes law had effectively reduced crime in New York.

HIT LUDLOW ACT

District attorneys and judges alike, with few exceptions, vigorously assailed the Ludlow act.

It was called an iniquitous piece of legislation by Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of Philadelphia. Judges John R. Henninger, of Butler, and John H. McCann, of Cambria county, took part in this discussion. Supreme Court Justice John W. Kephart, of Fayette county, was a leading advocate of a modified Baumes law plan for Pennsylvania.

The joint conference which convened the session was opened by Chief Justice Robert Von Moschzisker, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. John Monaghan, District Attorney of Philadelphia county, and former judge, who was elected chairman of the District Attorneys' Association of Pennsylvania, holding its annual meeting, entertained the jurists and attorneys at a luncheon. The bar association and the lawyers' club entertained the visitors at a luncheon today in the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, with former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown presiding.

bers declared themselves dissatisfied with the manner in which the coal company was guarding against persons entering or leaving the quarantined houses and a delegation called on Dr. Conover Thursday to obtain authorization for the appointment of a watchman of their own.

Dr. Conover gave the delegation a letter addressed to Pittsburgh Coal Company officials, which the watchman carried with him as his authority for entering company property to supervise the quarantine. Anton Kuna, of Library, was appointed as the board's watchman. When he went to the coal company camp at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Dr. Conover's letter was taken from him by coal and iron police and he was ejected from the company property, he reported to school board members.

COMMITTEE FAILS

Another committee of Snowden township school board members called upon Dr. Conover yesterday, but was unable to have the county medical director lay their case before him, they reported. The committee returned to the school late yesterday afternoon to find a letter from Dr. Conover, however, in which he counteracted his former action of authorizing a school board watchman and explained that he was sending a state health officer.

The letter follows:

"We have decided to replace your representative in the making of an inspection of the quarantine in force in Montour Mine No. 10 by a state health officer. This man will make periodic inspections and report to me. We will keep you advised.

"You will, therefore, consider that your representative no longer has the privileges requested for him. Enclosed please find a copy of my letter to officials of the coal company."

The letter to the coal company officials follows:

"We no longer request that you grant permission to the representative of Snowden township school board to make a periodic inspection, or any inspection, of the quarantine in force in your camp.

"This man will be replaced by an authorized health officer of the Pennsylvania State Department of Health. Mr. F. E. McClurg will represent the state in this matter. Kindly grant permission to him to enter your grounds."

The board members were indignant that Dr. Conover should rescind his action in such an abrupt manner and refuse to give them a hearing when their committee called upon him at his office yesterday.

"It seems to me that Dr. Conover has failed to comply with the law in this situation," declared Ralph Holzhauser, president of the school board, "and our board is unanimous in its action to keep the school closed until we are convinced that our children are in no danger from this dread disease.

"We do not understand why the county medical director must ask permission for a state health officer to enter the Pittsburgh Coal Company property. There are many things about this affair we do not understand, but we want to make it plain that we resent Dr. Conover's slight and the coal company's dictatorship in a matter which endangers our life and our homes."

Boy Saves Comrade, Drowns

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 7.—Harry Hiles, 16, gave his life to save a younger companion, John Rhoddell, 10, yesterday in a pond near High House, Both boys live at High House. The two youths, with another companion, fell into the water when an improvised raft capsized.

Hiles struggled with Rhodell while the other lad hung onto the side of the raft. Hiles pushed the Rhodell boy against the raft and then tried to save himself, but he seemed to grow weak and sank, according to the two who witnessed the drowning. The cries of the boys brought workmen to the scene. Although they began diving immediately for the body, it was not recovered until five hours later.

The father of the drowned boy met a violent death less than two years ago. His neck was broken in a coal mine accident. A mother and four brothers and sisters are living.

WEST ELIZABETH MAN, HURT MONTH AGO, DIES

Percy Montgomery, 23, a carpenter, of West Elizabeth, died in the McKeesport Hospital this morning from injuries received a month ago when a plank fell on his head while he was working.

WOMAN, 70 POISONS 300

FOUKE, Ark., April 7.—(AP.)—Dread of the poorhouse was believed to have driven 70-year-old Mrs. Nancy Lynn to attempt the extermination of 300 people, the inhabitants of this lumber camp.

When virtually all of the camp's inhabitants, men, women and children, were taken ill with symptoms of severe poisoning, the community well was plumbed. There over a pound of poison was found, and investigation revealed that Mrs. Lynn had purchased a quantity of poison a short time ago, officers said. Today Mrs. Lynn, with her brother, Morris, faced charges of assault with intent to kill.

Valuable timber holdings had been left Mrs. Lynn's children by their father and these had been sold to operators who owned the camp at which the poisoning took place. Mrs. Lynn, her children said, had tried to prevent the sale of the timber, holding to the idea that once her children had received their money she would be left penniless and a charge on the community.

Authorities, reconstructing the case, held to the theory that by exterminating the lumbermen and their families, Mrs. Lynn believed cutting of the timber would be averted and her safety from poverty insured. In jail, Mrs. Lynn would say nothing.

The poisoned were all believed today to have an even chance to recover. Children were the worst sufferers.

WOULD DUEL FOR HER

ELEANOR PAINTER

Because her husband, Louis Graveure, shaved off his beard since he last met Count Roger Zu Reventlow, son of the famous German war writer, he almost became involved in a duel for Eleanor Painter. The two are touring Europe in opera and were dining when Count Reventlow, surprised to see Eleanor, danced several times with her, much to Graveure's discomfort. Graveure objected and the Count fumbled for his cardcase. Miss Painter appeased the two.

RADIUM EXPERT, DR. VIOL, DIES IN NEW YORK

Dr. Charles H. Viol, 42, internationally known in radium research work and director of the radium research laboratories of the Standard Chemical Company of Pittsburgh, died yesterday in New York after three months' illness. His work in refining radium and his lectures upon radio activity as applied to radium-therapy made him known throughout the radium world. Until three years ago, it is said, half the high purity radium then available for medical or commercial use, had passed through the laboratories here under Dr. Viol.

He was born in Lafayette, Ind., was graduated from Purdue University, won a fellowship at the University of Chicago, and taught chemistry at the University of South Dakota. In 1912 he came to the Standard Chemical Company here.

His work attracted attention and in 1916-17 he was invited to lecture at Mellon Institute. He served as chairman and as counsellor of the Pittsburgh section, American Chemical Society.

He held a fellowship of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and belonged to various scientific bodies. He was a member of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the University Club here.

He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Viol; a brother, Walter E. Viol of East Orange, N. J. and two sisters, Mrs. James L. Cattell, of Lafayette, Ind., and Mrs. Bernice McChesney of Chicago.

WILL SEEK HEALTH ON COAST

EL PASO, Tex., April 7.—(AP.)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, left here for Pasadena, Ca., last night. In the former cabinet member's party, which boarded a Southern Pacific train departing at 6:45 o'clock, were his wife, his daughter, Mrs. B. F. Elliott, and H. G. Clunn, Fall's private secretary.

The former cabinet officer will go to a sanitarium at Pasadena for an indefinite stay on the advice of his physician, Dr. H. T. Safford, who believed the lower altitude would be beneficial to Fall's heart. He has suffered from low blood pressure.

"I do not know how long I will be on the coast," Fall said. "I will be under observation of a corps of specialists. I am hopeful they will be able to fix up the old heart so that it will be in running order again. If not—well, it doesn't matter whether it stops running in California or El Paso."

Fall refused to comment on the Harry F. Sinclair trial in the Teapot Dome case further than to say he was confident the deposition he recently gave would help Sinclair and would clear himself in the eyes of the public.

Dr. Safford said he was pleased with Fall's condition.

"He has recuperated greatly since the deposition was taken," the physician said. "His general condition is good and he has great vitality. The only bad feature is his heart and blood pressure and I am hopeful the lower altitude will help that."

THE PIG TURNS PROFESSIONAL

GETS EIGHT-HOUR DAY

"Systemization" has invaded even the pig industry. A pig today puts in his eight hours and goes home to sleep. The time may come when he'll have his union. The pig today is more than a supplement to sauerkraut. Witness the action of S. T. Barnes and William Hinkel, who are seeking an injunction to restrain the Borough of Wilmerding from carrying out a contract with David H. Chambers for collection of refuse. They say the contract wasn't awarded to the lowest bidder. Chambers told Common Pleas Court he had 300 pigs on eight-hour shifts disposing of Wilmerding's best garbage—and no labor troubles. Picture the day when an experienced swine demands time and a half for overtime!

RILED BY CLARK'S STAND

Protesting against vice and lawlessness, members of 15 North Side churches will attend a mass meeting Sunday night April 22, in the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side, to map a program for bettering conditions.

The protests will be made directly to Mayor Charles H. Kline, Public Safety Director James M. Clark and to Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate 3,000, according to the Rev. J. Alvin Orr, pastor of the church, who is to be chairman. Disclosures by prohibition agents in recent wholesale raids and Director Clark's declaration that liquor law enforcement is federal business, are partly responsible for the meeting.

The 15 churches, all of the North Side, which already have joined the movement follow: North Avenue Methodist Episcopal, First Presbyterian, Fourth United Presbyterian, Tenth United Presbyterian, Trinity Lutheran, Arch Street Methodist Episcopal, First Methodist Protestant, St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran, Eighth United Presbyterian, Second United Presbyterian, North United Presbyterian, Calvary Methodist Episcopal, Sandusky Street Baptist, St. Luke's Lutheran, First United Presbyterian.

JEANNE EAGELS TO DISREGARD SUSPENSION

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 7.—"Jeanne Eagels shall appear on Broadway next fall."

That was Miss Eagels' answer today to the announcement that she had been suspended from the Actors' Equity Association for 17 months. The decision of the Equity Council, before which she appeared for a hearing last Tuesday, held her responsible for the closing of "Her Cardboard Lover" on tour.

The penalty announced was suspension from Equity until September 1, 1929, and a fine equal to two weeks' salary. Miss Eagels was said to be under contract for $1,800 a week, plus a percentage of returns.

In declaring she would disregard the suspension, the actress insisted she would not change her plans. She had already contracted with Sam H. Harris to appear next October in "Parita."

Miss Eagels also said she would refuse to pay the fine imposed. She explained:

"The suspension is ridiculous and unjust. Twelve prominent physicians declared I was ill and could not appear in my play. My entire company appeared at the hearing to testify in my favor. My managers had withdrawn their charges and had asked me to return to the show. Against my doctor's orders, I had promised to do so at once."

The star challenged the Equity Council to enforce its decision. She declared she would take the matter to court if the Actors' association attempted to interfere with her appearing on Broadway next fall.

Sunday she mysteriously strolled away and was not found until several hours later.

Albert Grubbs, of 1921 Charles street, taxi driver, reported to the Millvale police that a passenger had robbed him of $5 and the taxi at Cabbage Hill. The fare had been picked up in Federal street, North Side and upon reaching his destination, drew a revolver and made Grubbs "walk home."

"NOW I ASK YOU?"

By AN ACTOR.

Due to years spent as a representative writer for the N. V. A. Club—in the New York Morning Telegraph—and due to the fact that their one big week is about to arrive, I have been asked by some—and permitted by others—to ask questions.

If you knew that you were to see the best show ever staged at the Sheridan Square Theater for just a few pennies more than the regular box office prices, you would be silly not to attend it—wouldn't you? Now I ask you?

Then if you knew by doing it you would be aiding some wonderful men and women in their efforts to alleviate the sufferings of others, unable to help themselves, you would be unkind not to do it, wouldn't you? Now again I ask you.

On the other hand, if you knew a few of the things that these unfortunates had been doing, when possessing their health, that were highly commendable, don't you think that you would like to be on the inside when "Overture" struck up? Now for the third time, I am interrogative?

Herein lies a narrative. I know, and how I know—I've told the world—I'll tell the world, many times and oft, off and on the Rialto.

In the cities of New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, salaries are being paid to artists having arrived at the age when their services have been no longer required. This helps the much talked about situation—the old age pension.

In these same cities there are magnificent clubrooms and club houses, where artists are permitted to spend their leisure moments—those still enjoying their good health.

In Manhattan their clubhouse is visited by the leading lights, not only in the theatrical firmament, but in every walk of life. Each Tuesday and Thursday evening artists are shown first releases of the moving picture world. Sunday night a big bohemian supper is given for a small price. At this, 15 of the stars, appearing in and about New York, present their specialties.

With a membership of about 12,000 one might figure that dues would be all that would be essential. If you were to know that even in the actors' society there are delinquents who, having arrived at the stage where they do not need financial assistance, refuse to pay those dues.

It requires more than patience to have men with large fortunes continue playing the part of benefactors—but E. F. Albee has stated his position in the matter.

He started it and is going to continue the good work, regardless of all this. This coming springtime the new National Vaudeville Artists' Sanitarium will be dedicated. What that will mean, folks!

Can you imagine what a remarkable charity this truly is—to be the means of restoring good health to those afflicted with tuberculosis? In three different spots there are N. V. A. sanitariums—Saranac, N. Y.; Denver, Col., and Phoenix, Ariz.

We've seen them go away, never to return, but we have also observed phenomenal cures. If, after reading this, you still have the opportunity to buy a seat—don't you think you would be falling down in your duty to your fellow man, if you didn't? For another time, I ask you?

Before continuing, may one mention that the feeling of good fellowship existing today between artist and manager is something out of the ordinary, and when compared to the days before the V. M. P. A. (Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association) became organized, astounding?

Last Sunday night the actors and actresses on the bill with me in the Harris Theater were royally entertained by John H. Harris—before they even opened for him.

Nothing like that was ever done in the old days. Big salaries were unheard of when the present old-timers were young. No actor capable to entertain at this time is seeking aid—only those unprepared to carry on. Now I ask you folks, if I am taking up too much of your time?

Remember that this is the actors' Red Cross. Don't forget that at these benefits there will be seen each and every artist within a radius of 50 or possibly 100 miles.

They never refuse to benefit other societies—so why shouldn't they work at their own? Another interrogation.

Don't forget—E. F. Albee and Secretary Henry Chesterfield are speaking—for a legitimate cause—so I think you should answer next Thursday night by making your presence felt at that Sheridan Square. If I conclude by wishing to be remembered favorably by you, would that be expecting too much? Now I ask you?

With best wishes, and many thanks to the kind editors of this paper, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours, for better subways and longer tunnels,

JOE DANIELS.

There will be a midnight show for the same cause in the Davis Tuesday night.

Will Hays Denies He's Film Czar, Just Advisor

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—Will H. Hays took exception to being called "czar of the movies" in an answer to a suit filed in Federal Court yesterday.

Mr. Hays, who is at present in France on business as head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, denied in the court paper that he is the supreme authority in the movies.

The paper was an answer to a suit by Valeska Suratt in which the scenario writer mentions Hays as one of many individuals and corporations she charges stole the plot of "The King of Kings" from her and in which she refers to Hays as the czar of the picture industry.

MAN, STABBED TWICE, UNKNOWN AT HOSPITAL

Completing a day's investigation, police this morning were still unable to identify a man, aged about 37, who is in the Pittsburgh Hospital suffering concussion of the brain and two stab wounds in the head.

The man fell unconscious yesterday while walking in Frankstown avenue, and it is thought he may have been hurt in a fight in a "speakeasy." John Hopkins, of 126 Luna street, who was walking with the man at the time, was discharged in Frankstown Avenue Police Court yesterday when arraigned on a drunkenness charge.

'MURDERED,' HE'S FOUND ALIVE

Police had a merry chase in the Hill district this morning for a murder victim.

Notified by telephone that Charles Griffin, of 2415 Berthoud street, had been murdered in Vera street, squads of police and detectives rushed there but failed to find the body. Mrs. Griffin, who had reported the murder, stated the body had been removed to the morgue, but a call there revealed no victim had been received.

Neighbors explained to the police that Mrs. Griffin had been ill with pneumonia, and they had seen Griffin go to work this morning. Found at work in Fernando street, he explained that his wife lately had been acting strangely. Police suggested that a physician be called. The Griffins are Negroes.

DRY AGENTS HIT DOWNTOWN

Continuing their campaign against liquor dispensers in Pittsburgh, prohibition agents yesterday reported raiding a well equipped bar in a "one man club," second floor of 927 Liberty avenue. They seized 60 quarts of whisky and two quarts of wine and arrested John J. Harris, alias John Morris, said to have been dispensing drinks.

Two women were among those arrested in eight other raids conducted by the Federal agents yesterday. Mary Socon was arrested at 224 Sycamore street, Clairton, and Mary Beli at 514 Sixth street, Braddock.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS GO FIRST TO EAST END

The first of the flexible progressive traffic control systems to be installed here will be put into operation in East Liberty, members of the East Liberty Trade Association were told at their luncheon yesterday by Burton Marsh, city engineer. The system will cost about $14,000 for the East Liberty section alone, Mr. Marsh said.

There will be a safety island and specially designed crossings in Penn avenue. Numerous signals, operated by a master controller, also will be installed along the main throughfares.

VETERANS THANK KLINE FOR VETO ON AGE LIMIT

Expressing the appreciation of war veterans generally, Charles E. Dailey, Allegheny county commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, today sent Mayor Charles H. Kline a letter commending the latter's refusal to sanction a reduction of application age limit for city policemen and firemen, unless war veterans were exempted.

Mayor Kline Wednesday informed the Civil Service Commission that he would not sign an amendment to the civil service rules which would change the age limit from 35 to 32 years, unless the veterans' exception was included.

NIP POISON TRAP

DEADLY POTION SENT WIFE; NAB MATE

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 7.—Accused of having tried to poison his wife with strychnine in a "love potion" supposedly from a fortune teller, Paul Karnack, 48, is in the county jail here, held without bail.

Karnack and his wife, who conduct a small grocery store in Monongahela, had quarreled Sunday. Karnack returned to Tower Hill, Fayette county, where he had been employed.

A letter received by Mrs. Karnack, supposedly from a fortune teller, urged her to mix half the contents of a package of powder in whisky and save the rest for her husband, declaring peace and love would return to their home.

Insistance that Mrs. Karnack take the first drink aroused her suspicions.

She called an officer and examination revealed 10 grains of strychnine.

Detective R. L. Elwood went to Tower Hill for Karnack and found he had asked to be away from work as "his wife was ill." Karnack returned to Monongahela and was arrested.

Are Dimes All Gone?

"HAVE A DOLLAR!"

When John D. Rockefeller, who popularized the dime, returned from Florida, he startled his secretary and the world at large by ordering that the bellhops who smashed, if you don't mind, his baggage, be rewarded each with a bright new dollar—enough to buy four gallons of gasoline. Imagine the secretary's embarrassment!

Use Plane to Cross Sahara, Says Will

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 7.—I am going to beat my friend Brisbane to this one. I read: Aviator flies in seven hours over Timbuctoo and Sahara Desert. It takes five months to make the trip overland, so if you are going to Timbuctoo, that's all the more reason why you should have an airplane. And don't sell America short. Get some good stock and hold it till it's worth more and then sell, but don't gamble.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

SLEUTHS PRESS SPEHAR QUIZ

Continuing their questioning today, city detectives hope to gain from their three prisoners further information regarding the killing of John Spehar, saloon keeper of 459 Stanton avenue. The alleged confession of the suspects places the murder on Tony Marino, of Sheffield street, North Side. Eugene Gray, alias Frank Skalski, 22, of Main street, Sharpsburg, and Carl Lucas, 17, alias Joseph Ward, of Maryland avenue, are prisoners with him. A fourth man, now in the Western Penitentiary, also has been implicated.

Detectives denied Marino had mentioned receiving $2,000 for the crime, plotted for several weeks.

Ruth Brown, 22, a waitress, of McDonald, was released last night under $200 bond. She, police say, is a companion of Skalski.

TEST IS SOUGHT IN AUTO CASE

A first degree murder verdict will be asked in the case of Martin Murray of Lawrenceville when he is placed on trial Monday in Criminal Court, accused of running down and fatally injuring a man while driving a stolen automobile, it was said at the office of the district attorney yesterday. The district attorney has refused to allow Murray to enter a plea of guilty. According to District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, he wishes to set a precedent for such cases.

Delights Of Spring Ring Time

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SPRING TIME! The very word is a call to joy! It is charged with all of youth and love and poetry and ecstasy!

The world is one when spring comes, in adoration of the renewed life and beauty of this old brown earth.

Who is too old and crabbed to be for at least an instant young and happy, on the first spring day? Who does not feel a quickening of the pulses, a stir of the heart which are prelude to love's spring songs?

You may have been warned not to heed the call of spring. You may have been assured it is only a trick of old Mother Nature's to inspire mating, and is not to be taken seriously.

But I am inclined to say, "Follow the impulse of spring—it is a sound instinct, based deep in the roots of life. Just so far as you can without harming others or neglecting the duties that must be done, follow the call to outdoors, to change, travel, love and joy."

YOU will wish to go away somewhere in search of adventure and romance—that is part of the spring urge. If you can't go to the ends of the earth, go sailing or hiking or bus riding. Follow your instinct. Fling your windows wide and bring outdoors within.

See that a pot of blooming hyacinths or daffodils is set in your window to express the song in your heart! Even a few nasturtium seeds in a painted tin can, bursting through their earth prison in search of sunlight, will tune in with the spring song.

Possibly your particular spring call may be to new and pretty clothes. Sometimes it is wise, indeed, to buy new clothes and wear them gaily when spring is decking the earth in fresh color. I know one girl who looked over her savings very carefully, when Easter was approaching, and decided to cut down expenses in other ways, but indulge in very pretty clothes.

AN inexpensive vacation camp near home, lunches of fruit—nothing else—for a month, and walking to and from work to save bus fares, she concluded, would offset her extravagance. So she bought a lovely, smart spring ensemble of French gray, with a darling little green silk hat, soft gray kid pumps and silk stockings, gray gloves and a gorgeous green handbag. All these new things were simply but well made. Both the coat and frock were a perfect fit. She even indulged in a spring permanent wave for her straight tresses.

Madge was plain, ordinarily. But in this carefully chosen costume her blue-green eyes looked deep and luminous, her well-brushed hair shone with tawney luster, and her clear skin took on faint color from the becoming green of her hat.

She merely followed a spring-time urge in this bit of extravagance. Her tailored new frock was not too elaborate or light-colored for the office. The first Saturday she wore her new outfit, Jimmy, who had a good position as assistant to the head bookkeeper, smiled and stopped for an instant to speak to her.

THIS he had done before. But today he said:

"Have you a date for this afternoon? Want to lunch with me and go to a matinee?"

Did she? How Madge had longed to become better acquainted with Jimmie, who seemed to her just about all a young man should be. Jimmie, on his part, had always considered Madge a nice kid. But, for some reason he could not analyze, never before had he realized how really lovely and sweet she was!

That Saturday afternoon was several spring times ago. Now Madge is Mrs. Jimmie. On Saturday afternoons this spring, they will pile into the family car and go for a spin with baby along in her tiny hammock to get the good fresh air.

That call to gay spring time plumage, is a very subtle matchmaking scheme of Madam Nature's, which has won more than one girl a husband in "ting time, spring time."

IS NOT the girl who frankly hopes for her own little home and her own babies and her Own Man, one day, justified in spending thought and good taste, as well as all the money she can reasonably afford, in making herself the kind of girl a young man will notice because of her smart, chic appearance?

One does not blame fruit trees for bursting into exquisite bloom, nor lilacs and tulips for their bright new adornments, so why should not you girls express, if you can, without pangs of conscience, your natural desire for a darling new spring costume?

As for love, it is in the air, of course, in spring. But here is a secret! It is always spring time when love is in the heart, regardless of what the calendar may indicate.

Love, spring time, immortal youth—are they not one, the mysteries of life, which gives it meaning and beauty?

Come out into the sunlight. Let yourself be young—love with unselfish devotion. Then you, also, will be part of the sheer joy, which is spring time ring time!

THE SPRING SONG

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

ONCE upon a time there was a very great musician, who wrote over-poweringly beautiful songs, and sang them himself. His name bothered him, because he felt it did not express the beauty and grace and the passion that he believed he was putting into his lovely songs. His name was Daniel Cupid. And he thought it sounded comic rather than romantic. "It will make folks laugh, instead of sigh, when someone says 'It's Dan that's singing!' " said he. But it was his nature to carol and chant the most heart-melting serenades that were ever heard out of faery-land, even with a name like "Dan"; so carol and chant he did—and his name went on being DAN CUPID—and sounding funny to him.

BUT! Not to the rest of the world, it didn't! You know how the character of a man or a girl has a way of coloring his name or hers? How, though the name be ever so plain, it takes on beauty from the thing the man or girl does? Until at last, for instance, it seems that the romantic, kind, voluble, person whom you know by the name of "Pete" could never have had any name that fitted him better than that one. It has taken its color from the beloved person who owns it. When "Pete" started out in life with that bluntest of names, no one thought it engaging. But now!... Well, so it was with the composer-singer, Dan Cupid. Where can you look now to find a name that summons all that the word love means as that one does? No where in this world. For his name forecasts the "Lullaby" as surely as it sings of present young love. His voice in your ear is ecstacy now, and fond content some coming day.

Here in my picture is a young girl who listens to his "Spring-Song," sighed and trilled from a new-budding bough in a magic voice.

She is one of many, who may not sit so happily, just in this pretty setting, just in this pretty dress, but who hear just what she does, and lean just as surely as she toward the spell of his song. The lady who makes portraits of Daniel Cupid, the musician, for a living, and for her own pleasure, too, hopes you all will be just as happy as I can make this girl-of-just-a-picture if I like!

—NELL BLINKLEY.

Work, Play And Relax Sensibly

By MARIA JERITZA

FOREIGN critics sometimes declare that Americans do not know how to relax. Even when they play, they play so hard that they make hard work of recreation.

This is a serious charge, if true. Men and women cannot live at constant high tension without wearing out from the strain. Every athlete will tell you that relaxation is as necessary as strength and skill in order to win a competition.

Nurmi, the great runner; Weismuller, winner of the Olympic swimming race in Paris, while waiting for the start of a race, laugh and chat with their friends, take "things easy" mentally and physically.

YOU! American women, also, need to learn that you need relaxation and rest as well as strenuous work, in order to remain fit and strong, young and beautiful. Unless a woman knows how to relax, rest and play, her "pep" soon becomes forced and her eyes grow haggard and old, despite every clever artifice of make-up.

Do not drive yourself beyond your own best average speed or you will cut off, in all probability, the best years of your life, handicap yourself in the race for success, dim your beauty and charm. See that you get your eight hours of sound sleep each night in a quiet, dark, well-ventilated room.

Refuse to overwork, except, of course, in occasional great emergencies, when your utmost, unflagging, unresting efforts may be necessary for a time in a good cause. But plan your life in general in such a way as to leave abundant margins for leisure and wholesome relaxation.

Get outdoors each day. Walk or ride or swim or indulge in whatever form of outdoor recreation appeals to you.

I KNOW two young girls who went on a much needed vacation last summer, determined to get every instant of enjoyment from their short two weeks. They were up at sun-rise for a dip in the ocean. They hiked, rode, swam, danced, sailed, played tennis, golfed, fished, picnicked incessantly. They left no margins in their plans for loafing or resting or being lazy. When those two girls returned home, they were far more weary, and looked far more worn, than when they started.

In planning your vacation rest this summer, and the season for vacation planning by the way, is with us once more—take into consideration the importance of easy, enjoyable relaxation.

Leave time in your regime for doing things you love to do, also for rest and refreshment. An indoor and also an outdoor hobby, are wise for every woman.

If you learn to rest and relax enjoyably, as well as work enthusiastically, you will have learned the secret that drives away wrinkles and keeps a woman young and charming, regardless of passing years.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

Short, Frequent Rests Better Than Long Vacations

HERE is a sensible bit of advice, it comes from Dr. Donald Guthrie:

"A busy man's vacation should be taken in broken doses; a safer plan than a prolonged one taken after exhaustion develops."

DR. COPELAND

That is about as wise a suggestion as I have read in a long time. Why wait till complete exhaustion arrives?

If we could get worn-out men and women to take the needed rest before utter prostration comes, many lives would be saved. It is dreadful to see a man struggle along, striving hard to finish his task, and then falling in his tracks.

I have in mind as I write, a man close to 70, working at his desk every day, his face haggard, his lips white, all but crushed under his daily task. I talked with him the other day. "Go to Florida for two weeks, lie in the sun, get a lot of needed sleep and come back to take up your work with renewed vigor."

"Can't do it now," he replied. "In June I'll get away for a good long vacation."

What a shame! That man is liable to die in his tracks. Besides, the work he can do in his present state won't amount to much. Two weeks of real rest would permit him to do in the following two weeks 10 times as much as he will do in his worn-out condition.

This man should take his vacation in broken doses. A quarter of it now and another quarter some other time, would keep him fresh and fit all the time.

You know I am telling you the gospel truth. You are nodding assent. But what will you do about it? Nothing, absolutely nothing!

You ask then, "Why are you giving all this advice?"

I am doing it so your wife will read what I say. She will grasp the importance of the matter and then, mister, you'll take that partial vacation right now!

Whenever a man tells me that his wife reads this health advice, I know that he is saying to himself, "I wish these health advocators would get writer's cramp!"

But, come now, why not rearrange that vacation idea of yours? Instead of waiting till next summer's vacation, why not take a week this spring?

If you do, you will get twice as much out of the three weeks you have left for summer. Think it over.

It will do your wife good to have a little vacation, too. How about Atlantic City, or, if you are country folks, why not go to the city for a week? When were you last in the old home where you were born?

Give yourself a change for health's sake before you break down in complete exhaustion.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

SPRING LOVE

WHAT, save summer fiction, oh my Daughter, is lighter than spring love?

* * *

Go to. A spring romance resembleth a pot of hyacinths. For it is the sweetest and the tenderest thing in all the world—and likewise the frailest and the soonest to die.

* * *

Yet, I charge thee say not, "It is done! It is done! I am through with love, forever!"

* * *

For, behold, there cometh always ANOTHER April—and another love!

* * *

Verily, there is a worse thing than the brevity of spring love; and that is a summer cold and a love that hangeth on, after the glamor hath departed and the illusions are dead.

HELEN ROWLAND

Yet, there is naught that man taketh so much for granted as the gift of a woman's love. But when she seeketh to take back the gift, he cannot BELIEVE it! For his mind is as a non-refillable bottle.

* * *

The Perfect Lover is like unto the dynosaurus. Many volumes have been written concerning him; but WHO hath ever met one in the life?

* * *

Say not of the philanderer, "He may have deceived and dallied with others; but with ME, it will be different!" For, in his loves as in his daily habits, a man runneth true to form.

* * *

Bachelors flee when woman pursueth; but married men are bold as lions. For what have they to fear? Yet, a second mortgage on a man's affections is worthless, when the holder of the marriage certificate putteth in her claim.

* * *

The chain smoker lighteth one cigaret from the dying end of another and the "chain-lover" lighteth one flame from the dying embers of another. But the Fool who maketh love to all women is as the nut who would light the whole pack of cigarets with one match.

* * *

The road to pleasure is broad and crowded; but only TWO may travel the Road to Romance. Therefore, be discriminating in thy loves.

* * *

If petting parties and cheap flirtations entice thee, my Daughter, consent thou not. For life is too brief to admit anything within that is neither beautiful nor useful. And a casual lover is a deadly thing.

* * *

The lilac scenteth the world and delighteth the spirit. Likewise doth a spring romance. And wherefore shall a damsel foreswear either, because it will not last forever?

* * *

Verily, there is a sadder thing than a woman who hath lost a lover. There is she who hath never had a lover—in the spring-time!

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 8

Increasing knowledge increaseth sorrow, in the beginning, but increase it enough and knowledge puts an end to pain.—KEVAN DEO GRIFFIS.

SUNDAY'S horoscope hold significators of much social and intellectual activity. Gayety and liveliness rule the day, but there is a note of warning against duplicity and fraud. Extreme circumspection is enjoined. Sign all writings with caution.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of business and personal liveliness, with social, domestic and affectional as well as intellectual matters engaging the attention, and calling for discretion and precaution. Sign writings carefully and be alert against fraud and duplicity, especially in new ventures.

A child born on this day should have many talents and accomplishments, fitting it for popularity and success. Yet it may be of restless tendencies and be subject to treachery and annoyance.

Monday, April 9

Monday's astrological forecast is for an eventful day, with crystallized conditions broken up to make way for abrupt and sudden changes of momentous importance. These may be attended by tumult and friction unless managed with calmness and control. The finances are not well fortified.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of an eventful year, with unforeseen events precipitated upon the breaking up of long thwarting obstructions. But the benefits and general advantages may be nullified.

A child born on this day should have many stable qualities and should be ingenious as well as independent in thought and action. It should learn to control impetuosity and ill-temper.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Over a Century

DEAR MISS GALE:

Mine seems a real problem, but perhaps to other hearts, with their own particular sorrow, it is nothing. When I was about 18 years of age I met and fell in love with a fellow several years my senior. We were engaged to be married and life seemed complete. We were sweethearts for about four years and I discovered that to him I was only the kind of a girl fellows usually marry, but that he was leading a wild and free life when he wasn't with me. This almost broke my heart and health for about two years and after careful nursing I find myself well again and not cynical or a disbeliever in love. I just believe that I made a mistake and that somewhere in the world is some one true and good. About three years after I stopped going with this boy I met a mere youth, you might say, who attracted me greatly, owing to his clean and good mode of living. On making his acquaintance I found his likes and dislikes and ideals and dreams were exactly as mine, and so we went together for about four years and never, in that four years has he ever seemed to care for another girl. He has given me a heart of true love and devotion, and so rare is his devotion that many people remarked on it. His mother tells me that at home he speaks my name to her as though I were next to the angels. Now I am 20, and the sad part of this happiness that has come, I am afraid too late. He is only 24. Miss Gale, when I met him I realized the difference in our ages, and for that reason I told him I would give him my answer when he was 25, thinking that surely if there was to be some one else for him he would have tired of me in that length of time and then no one's life would have been wrecked. I look no older than 21, therefore none of our friends suspect the difference in our ages. Miss Gale, I love this boy so much that sometimes I lay awake at night and cry at the thought of the difference and wonder if I should give him up. The cry is youth for youth, but I look younger than 19 and I have a sweet disposition and heart, and do you think we could find happiness despite this difference? He insists it makes no difference, but I am afraid after a few years of married life I might lose my husband to some giddy girl who won't realize the price it is costing some one. Tell me.

OVER A CENTURY.

It seems to me that this young man has proved his life for you in the past four years. Five years is a good bit of difference, but there have been many happy marriages when the difference was greater.

Correspondents are reminded that all letters sent to this department must be written on one side of the paper only, and that no personal replies are ever given.

Ross

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a fellow 25 years of age and love a girl three years my junior very much. I shall call this girl Esther. Esther had some friends up at her home one evening not during the games and then the phone rang. Esther's sister answered it. It was for Esther, and she talked to a fellow no doubt, as the conversation could not be helped but to be heard. This episode hurt me very much, Miss Gale, as I thought she was as true to me as I was to her. We had been going steady for years. I spoke to her about it, but she severely said, "Oh, forget it, big boy." I could make her out. I'm heartbroken about it all and intend to go away for a while or just quit seeing her, when will be mighty hard, as I love her so. What would you do if you were in my situation, Miss Gale? ROSS.

If I were you, Ross, I wouldn't wait any longer to propose to this girl. It is rather absurd for you to feel so hurt, since you are not engaged and the girl, no doubt, feels that if you really care for her, you would have asked her to marry you quite a while ago.

Peg

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 19 years old and have been going with a fellow about a year. He is of a different religion and for that reason is very much disliked by my family, who have forbidden me to see him. I think a great deal of this young man and don't see how I can give him up. I think a lot of your advice, so am writing you for some, as I am very much undecided what to do. PEG.

There have been many happy marriages between people of different religions, Peg, but you are very young, so why not listen to your family for another year or so? You want to be very sure of yourself anyway before thinking

Puzzled Me

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 18, the oldest of five children. Since I have no mother I am coming to you for advice about three years ago I met a young man. Now, please do not say I was too young to understand. I was at that time, but I do not think I am now. I want to tell you some things about us first. At 17 years of age he married, but, when I meet him he was not living with his wife. He told me the third night I was with him that he was married, but asked me to give him a chance. He did not keep this from me. He is good to me, does all he can to make me happy. He has taken me to his home and I have met most of his friends. He is good, does not drink, swear, but he does smoke. Now, here is my problem. Should I go away and wait for him? He has tried for a divorce a number of times, but has not succeeded. He has tried again and it comes up in court next month. He is paying his wife good alimony. His mother and we both think this is the reason she will not divorce him. Now, when he left his wife he had a good deal of money, plenty to keep anyone in luxury, but about six months ago he lost most of this through an accident. This is the reason why he thinks his wife will not divorce him. She does not know of this accident. I have been going with him off and on till about two years ago, and from then I have been going with him steady. My father at first forbade this, but now he understands and treats him like a son of his own. His mother knows we love each other and has asked me to wait for him. Now, should I wait or go away? If I go away perhaps he could forget, but he has said he would follow me till he found me. I could never marry anyone else, for I love him too greatly for that. He is everything in this world to me. Now, I hope you will help me and tell me which is right, to wait or go away? If I go away I would always be unhappy. PUZZLED ME.

You are young enough to wait a while longer, my dear. It is a most difficult harm in your waiting until he is free to marry you.

Nature's Sweetheart

DEAR MISS GALE:

Although I am 23 years of age, a year ago was my first love affair. I never knew what it meant to be in love until I met this young man. I met him, Miss Gale, while I was taking my evening stroll which is my usual habit. As I was walking up the road he asked if I minded if he walked with me and I was sort of lonesome so consented. Well we just had a wonderful walk and talk that evening and many evenings after that. I am a great out-of-door girl and he was a civil engineer and also loved the out doors, so we had wonderful times together all last summer. We were great friends for we had never kissed. In the fall he left Pittsburgh, but before he left he confessed his love for me and that was our first kiss. He did not return until November. In December he left again and promised to write. I did receive one letter in which he told me how much he loved me, but I have not heard from him since and I am not ashamed to say that I am broken-hearted. If I knew where to write I would write. Before I met him I was a happy go-lucky girl, and now, even when I take my evening walks I do not get the same enjoyment out of them, Miss Gale. I have no close relatives and live alone in a 4-room cottage left me by my grandmother who died a few years ago. I am a stenographer and work in the city, but cannot make up with the young people at work for most of them think only of dancing, petting and drinking, and I certainly do not approve of any. I am trying very hard to forget this young man, but most of all I would like to be my old self again. I am very innocent but even the simple pleasures don't seem the same. Miss Gale, What can I do to live in the rosy world of used to be? Do you think I will ever fall in love again? I am sort of afraid to try it again. I know of three young men who would like very much to be true slave the rest of their lives, but every time I would like to go out with any of them I think of the one who said he loved me and has broken my heart and whom I cannot forget. I was nature's sweetheart before I met him and will go back and live and love the birds, trees and flowers, for I do live in the country, Miss Gale. Thanking you for any advice you may give me, I am

NATURE'S SWEETHEART.

My dear, I am afraid you are outlining a very lonely life for yourself. The beauties of country life can never compensate for a loss of companionship. The best thing you can do is to go out with these young men and try to be light hearted again. It will be an effort, of course, but nothing worth while is accomplished easily. It is easy to slip into a morbid mood, but it takes courage and force to come out of it again.

You should build up your strength in the Spring with Father John's Medicine.

Lenten Sermonette

The Power of the Resurrection

By the REV. DR. CLARENCE E. MACARTNEY.

Philippians 3:22.

The power of the Resurrection is the power of a great fact. In an article in this month's issue of a well-known magazine, Robert Keable, the novelist, formerly a clergyman, after referring to one of the great facts of the Christian faith asks the question—"What in the world does it mattter whether or not it is historically true?" This is the position which a great many seem to be taking today.

But Christianity was not founded upon such a basis. The apostles preached "Jesus and the Resurrection." The resurrection, as a supernatural and tremendous fact, was God's certificate to the person of Jesus Christ, and His right and power to save sinners.

The power of the resurrection is the power of a great witness. God does not ask to believe the overwhelming truths which are presented to us in the Gospel, such as that the Son of God became man, His death on the cross to satisfy divine justice and reconcile man to God, and through faith in Him the gift of eternal life, or by the rejection of Him, eternal death—God does not ask us to accept these overwhelming truths without extraordinary and overwhelming evidence, and the chief evidence is the fact of the resurrection. St. Paul said that Christ was "declared to be the Son of God, with power, by the resurrection from the dead." When he described the case of Paul and his appeal to the jurisdiction of Caesar to King Agrippa, the procurator Festus said that the whole thing seemed to be a dispute over "one Jesus," "who was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive." There lies the issue, and the whole issue, of Christianity. Is Jesus dead—or is He, as St. Paul affirmed, alive? Christianity stands upon that grand affirmation of the apostle—that Jesus is alive.

Finally, the power of the Resurrection is the power of a great hope. If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so they also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, that is, if Christ with all His beauty and majesty, is a teacher and inspirer for these few years only, which we live upon earth, then, indeed, we are of all men most miserable. Better never to have had these fine ideals, these glorious hopes, than to have them quenched in the dust of the grave. But now is Christ risen and become the first fruits of them that slept.

Instead of fancy, speculation, arguments from analogy, or the peeping and muttering of those who try to invade before their time the unseen world, the Christian believer takes his stand upon that mighty, irrefragable, historic fact that Christ rose from the dead the third day, according to the Scriptures.

FACTORY COST $500,000, IS SOLD FOR ONE-TENTH

The Sewickley Electric Meter Company plant at Stoops Ferry, which during the war cost $500,000 to build, yesterday was sold at auction for about $50,000. The sale was announced by W. R. Schuchman, president of the Homestead Valve Manufacturing Company, the new owner. The Homestead company will move to Stoops Ferry. The sale included 108 acres of land, a three-story factory building and a four-story office building. Some of the interior equipment was sold separately, it was said.

KLAN'S FOUNDER HERE FOR SUIT

A 44-page affidavit made last week in Atlanta, Ga., by Col. William Joseph Simmons, founder of the Ku Klux Klan, will be filed today in the office of the clerk of the United States District Court to be used next week in the klan hearing against five "banished" members who are the defendants in a $100,000 damage suit instigated by the klan. The affidavit relates the founding of the organization.

Simmons, who had not been expected in Pittsburgh until Monday, when he will testify in the suit, was reported to have arrived in the city last night and to have attended a secret meeting at which many "banished" Klansmen pledged their faith in him. He will remain outside the city until the hearing, it was said.

It is believed the hearing next week will be one of the most sensational and bitterly contested litigations in the history of the court. The Klan seeks to obtain $100,000 damages from each of the five "banished" members and to have the five restrained from interfering with the activities of the Klan. The five defendants in turn have asked that the Klan be placed under receivership and made to account for all the money they collected in Pennsylvania.

The five defendants are the Rev. John F. Strayer of Latrobe, Dr. Charles S. Hunter of North Bessemer, Dr. Charles P. Oyer of Wilkinsburg, William C. Davis of Manor and Attorney Van A. Barrickman of Pittsburgh. They were banished from the organization January, 1927, according to the bill of complaint.

Simmons' affidavit supplements that of D. C. Stephenson, which was taken two weeks ago in the Indiana State Prison, where he is now serving a life sentence for murder. Simmons' affidavit was presented in court here yesterday, but yesterday being a holiday, the papers will not be filed until today.

Stocks Sold, Bonds Bought? Air Stock Boom Premature

—By B. C. FORBES—

BOND prices have reached a new peak. This suggests that many wealthy investors have been reducing their holdings of stock during the wild speculation and putting the money into bonds. Should stocks tumble to bargain levels, much of this money doubtless would be switched back into stocks.

THE very limited number of airplanes produced in this country doesn't warrant the sensational marking up of several air stocks. The aircraft industry as an industry is still very much in its infancy. The day will come, of course, when money—probably fortunes—will be made in making airships. But that day is hardly yet here.

What is happening in radio may happen in aircraft. Certain powerful interests may get together and create one enterprise so powerful as to dominate the whole industry and earn, ultimately, very generous profits for stockholders. If one could foretell which group is to come out on top, one could unquestionably make money by tying up with it. It is not yet clear, however, whether the kingpin airship-making will be Ford or Wright or Curtis of somebody else.

The sensational boom in air shares strikes me as distinctly premature.

THE writer still feels that the general run of boomed stocks is too high.

ARTHUR BRISBANE, whose daily column is part of America's education, after saying that he read with much interest what was said in this column the other day about Julius Rosenwald having impressed upon all Sears, Roebuck managers throughout the country the importance of cooperating loyally with their local communities, writes: "You ought to add just one line, I should say, mentioning the fact that as you were writing that article, he was giving $5,000,000 to buy farms for unfortunate Jews in Russia, giving them a chance to get on the land."

BRITAIN'S desire to stop attempting to regulate the production and the price of rubber is eminently wise from every standpoint. The scheme was totally contrary to Britain's cherished "free trade" principles. Artificial boosting of prices rarely proved sound economics.

My guess is that, after temporary unsettlement and perhaps very low prices, rubber will gradually work itself up to a reasonable price level. Rubber and oil are today in much the same position. Both are in over-supply, but both are yearly experiencing increased consumption and seem certain to rise in value sooner or later—and probably sooner rather than later.

GRACE M. SPARKES of Prescott, secretary of the Arizona Blythe Bridge and Highway Association, writes that "at historical old Ehrenberg, where the first white settlement was established on the Colorado River, the first toll bridge ever erected in Arizona has been officially dedicated." This new $600,000 structure "now forms the connecting link between California and Arizona and makes the Sunkist Trail the logical year-round route of travel to and from the Grand Canyon of Arizona, to and from California and eastern points. The Automobile Club of Southern California estimates that this will become the greatest traveled highway in the entire southwest."

She adds: "It was a glorious sight to view 20 airplanes hovering above this mighty bridge, which had harnessed the Colorado River, and to see Gov. George Hunt and Lieut. Gov. Fitts clasp hands in the center of the bridge, with the flags of Arizona and California waving in the breeze, with doves of peace released, showing that, despite our differences on the Colorado River, we are at least united on our highway development program."

Strange how the same routes the Arizona pioneers first chose are becoming the accepted lines of travel despite changes in the mode of transportation.

THE new Atlanta-New York daily air mail service starts May 1. Things do move.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Miss Elmina B. Mantor to Appear in Morning Musicale

A MEMBER of one of Pittsburgh's oldest families who has come back here to live is going to be on the program at the next in the series of morning musicales being sponsored by Mrs. Taylor Allderdice and a group of her friends, I hear. She is Elmina Bindley Mantor, known socially as Mrs. Elmina B. Sandell, and, of course, is directly connected with the local Bindleys. Her brother is Albion Bindley, of Shady avenue.

Miss Mantor is both a singer and a reader, and, as a further indication of versatility, has had several of her writings published. At the musicale, which, by the way, is to be given May 1 in Mrs. Allderdice's home in Wilkins avenue, Miss Mantor is going to read several poems written by another well-known Pittsburgh woman, Mrs. William Henry Siviter, and will sing old ballads and Negro spirituals, wearing an old-fashioned costume. One of the spirituals, she says, was sung to her by her Negro mammy in Florida, and has never been written. It is called "Clap, Clap Hands." Matthew Frey is to be her accompanist. Miss Mantor, I understand, is planning to make her permanent home in Pittsburgh.

In addition to these songs and readings, there is to be an excellent program of both instrumental and vocal music. A string trio composed of Mrs. Elizabeth Burt Mellor, violinist, Mrs. W. D. Stewart, pianist, and Mrs. Christine Adams Jones, 'cellist, will play, and Mrs. George Macbeth is to give soprano solos. There also will be piano numbers by Mrs. John Byerly.

Speaking of the Allderdices, their daughters, Nancy and Jane, just returned on Friday from a most interesting trip. They visited in California and Arizona and then made the boat trip home through the Panama Canal, stopping for a short while in Havana.

* * *

A group of three young married couples, the C. Thornton Garrisons, the junior William B. Schillers and Mr. and Mrs. F. LeMoyne Page, motored on Thursday to Rolling Rock, and left there on Friday to drive down to Warrenton, Va. There they will attend the wedding of Margaret Keith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Keith, of that place, and James Christy Hamilton, son of Mrs. Alfred Reed Hamilton, of Woodland road, which is to take place on Tuesday. And, of course, they will be there in time for the many parties which are planned before the wedding. Mrs. Garrison, you know, is a sister of Mr. Hamilton.

A very small wedding of Thursday was that of Rebecca Hamilton Sleppy and Henry G. Fownes, son of Mrs. W. C. Fownes, of Washington, D. C., which took place in the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Margaret Hamilton, in California avenue. You remember, of course, that Mr. Fownes' father died recently, and consequently the wedding was a quiet one. Only the two families and a few close friends were there. Mr. and Mrs. Fownes are going to take a trip to Bermuda, and when they come back they will be at home in Howe street.

From Asheville, N. C., comes word of an interesting engagement which was announced at a party given last night in the Kenilworth Inn, Baltimore. It is the betrothal of Josephine Borton Marvel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe A. Marvel, to Joseph Franklin Kuntz, Jr., son of Joseph Franklin Kuntz, of Center avenue.

Lebanon and Washington, Pa., will be maid of honor and Adolph Pluskey is to be his brother's best man. A reception and dinner for the families will follow the ceremony in Webster Hall. After an eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Pluskey will be at home in Jackson street.

GRANT STREET SITE FOR NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

With $300,000 immediately available from the government's budget for a new Pittsburgh postoffice and Federal Court building, it is expected that the construction work soon will be under way. The site has an area of 80,200 square feet. It faces 502 feet on the east side of Grant street, extends 146 feet in Seventh avenue from Grant street to the Pennsylvania Railroad at the north entrance of the Fourth avenue tunnel, and runs to the Pennsylvania Station driveway. By means of sidings and underground passage ways, mail will be carried directly between the postoffice and mail cars with minimum handling and loss of time.

EXPLOSION WRECKS PUMPING PLANT

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 7.—An explosion today in a gas and electric company plant killed one man, injured seven others and caused $30,000 damage. The city's gas service is paralyzed.

John Morrisey, 60, gauge tender, believed to have been knocked unconscious in the explosion, was burned fatally in the fire that followed.

Morrissey was suffocated at his post as he struggled courageously to turn off a valve and stop the fire. The plant superintendent, H. B. Straight, and Engineer George Ludwig were burned painfully. One, Michael Biernick, was near death.

An estimated 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas spouting from a 30-inch main was burned.

The city was forced to get its breakfast without gas and faced prospect of a curtailed Easter dinner because of low pressure.

The explosion occurred as the pumper was changing from one gas holder to another. Hot lead was being poured to seal the connection when the gas was ignited.

STRIKE PICKET CUT IN FIGHT

One man was slightly cut on the arm and another was arrested last night as a result of a fight between a non-union miner and a union picket at the Mansfield mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, near Carnegie. Thomas Drake, 34, a Negro non-union miner, who is alleged to have cut Frank Scott, 23, a union picket, was held for court on a charge of felonious assault and battery by Justice of the Peace Philip Hillen of Heidelberg. He was lodged in the county jail in default of bail. Scott was only slightly hurt.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

by George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LL.D.

How Education Fails in Solving Problems of Life

More Raw Meat and Bones for Youth to Chew on Needed to Develop Intelligence Requisite

That the Golden Rule is the only worth-while standard of human behavior was asserted by Dr. Dorsey, in yesterday's chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," in The Sun-Telegraph. Why it is not practiced and why rational conduct is nothing but a dream were expounded by the author.

The Problem Before Civilization

CHAPTER LII.

PROBABLY no two are of the same opinion as to what constitutes socially useful behavior. But there can be no doubt that many do not get out of life what life might be expected to yield, considering the length of time it has been on the job, and that many do not give to society the service society might expect to receive, considering the energy it expends on educational and social endowments.

GEORGE A. DORSEY.

Why this is so is an enormously difficult and vastly complicated problem. Is it because society solves living with the latest mechanical contraptions and solves life with old rules? At any rate, it knows next to nothing about life, but does have a large collection of gadgets for living. As a consequence, we are at the mercy, and not in command, of the tools of living.

This is no plea for the "simple life"—or a remedy for anything. Goodness knows, we have enough prescriptions, and enough handwagons and barkers inviting us to climb aboard. But have we a sound diagnosis of social ills and individual disabilities?

Are our teachers and parents setting examples of rational and intellectual living, and are they getting into the rising generation such an outlook on life, such a conception of the possibilities of life, and such a comprehension of the unlimited capacities for life, that the next generation will inevitably live a broader, saner, sounder and more intellectual life than we are living?

Real Intelligence Needed

And by intellectual I do not mean "highbrow" stuff. I mean the kind of intelligence that distinguishes men from cats and cattle—what they think about, what occupies their gray matter. There is no inherent reason why the miner, plowman and milkmaid should not be as intellectual as the poet, auditor, or school teacher. Coal, corn and milk furnish us more energy than poems, balance sheets and schools.

If ignorance is bliss, all right. But this country proceeds on the theory that ignorance is a defect, that education will cure it, and that the opposite of ignorance is intelligence, and that compulsory education makes for intelligence.

But does it? What has the boy or girl of intelligent behavior on leaving school? To say that they have a smattering of this and of that is to say what everybody knows and what has been said thousands of times; that they have added a few hundred words to their vocabulary, have memorized a few facts and formulae, have dissected a fishworm (possibly) and a flower, and have read several hundred pages of history and polite literature. That may be education, but it is not life; nor is it hitched to human lives or human society; nor is it intelligence.

Good, honest, hard-headed character is a function of the home. If the proper seed is sown there and properly nourished for a few years it will not be easy for that plant to be uprooted. But it is the business of the school so to engage youthful interests that youthful energies will flow into creative channels.

No school can really educate, but every school should nourish the enthusiasm of every normal child for learning, for exploring, for manipulating; should stimulate the fountain of youthful curiosity and not plug it up with facts. Above all, it should not dam youth up—or down.

Raw Meat for Youth

Youth has the will, the energy, the impetus; give it raw meat and bones to chew on. Give it a place in the sun, keep it in touch with life, help it to get its feet on the ground and its wits ground to a razor edge. To go over the same old ground, to analyze the same old moss-covered problems, is dilettantism; it is not preparation for life. This is a new world; it demands new brains, and new people to handle the new problems of life and of human society, quite as much as people trained in building bridges and motor cars or in selling lipsticks and bonds.

Socially useful behavior is not more prevalent because socially fashionable behavior has a better lobby. Good form is in the saddle; it is ruthless, it is mighty, and it does prevail. It is not founded on intelligence, it requires no brains, it has no outlook, it is stupid and short-sighted, it incites to anarchy and chaos. Education today is its handmaid and its body-servant.

After all, what can be of less consequence to you than whether I believe in this or that kind of a God, government, society? What is of consequence to you, to society, and to me, is what I do. What is vitally important is that I live as an honest human being who acknowledges responsibilities and obligations, who plays the game like a thoroughbred, who does not whine and does not cheat, and who believes that there is room in this world for many creeds but for only one religion.

The kind that was Lincoln's. Does anyone know what Lincoln believed? The world knows what he did. He lived his religion, day by day.

Propaganda for Sanity

Is education attempting to encourage creative thought, or merely trying to divert thinking into old channels and so stifle it entirely? Thinking on old lines is to continue in the same old way regardless of reason or intelligence. Thinking soundly is to wake up and ask questions; it is to make new creations possible.

I went through one school and was halfway through another before I woke up and discovered that I was alive; that it is no sin to question anybody or anything; and that there are several problems yet unsolved!

The curriculum itself reads like a mail-order catalogue. No conceivable course is omitted, except one on life and how to get more out of it with less friction to others and less lost motion to the liver.

All this may sound like propaganda. It is. Ppropaganda for sanity; for enlightenment; for brain work; for time to live and the acquisition of a few simple tools to live with; for understanding; for such charity as will abolish the need for alms; for honesty in rulers and intelligence in legislation; for a stop-and-think-it-over-week; for regard for human rights; for critical judgments; for dispassionate opinions, for hatred of shams, intolerance, falsehood and deception; for riddance of quacks, mountebanks, impostors, charlatans, vermin, squalor and ignorance; for a car for ever family and a joy ride through life for everyone; for socially useful behavior.

The Problem for Us

Everything that man has made, done, said, and thought has been built on the impulse to live, organic hunger for food and mate, fashioned, molded and reinforced by the emotional drive in life. Every normal human being has that equipment at birth. It is in the very marrow of the child's bones, in the protoplasm of its nerves. It is the foundation of every personality. It cannot be wiped out, crushed, or stifled; it can be warped, distorted, diseased, degraded.

It can be encouraged to grow, to expand, to blossom, to bear fruit. It may produce an inspiring leader who will show the way and be the way to bring a new order into the world of human affairs.

Society may kill him. Never mind. Society will build a monument to him in admiration of his having dared to be a leader. The least we can do is to keep our hands off the courage of youth.

The problem, then, narrows down to this: Children of nature and creatures of circumstances as we are, can we discover what organic evolution is up to and can we help it on its way?

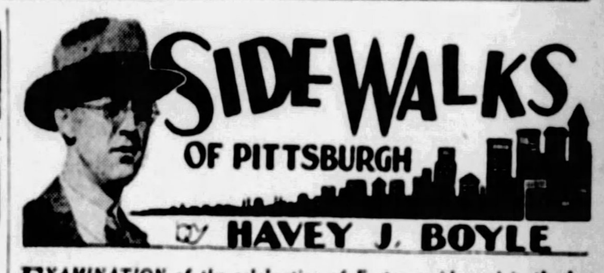
U. S. TO BUILD GARAGE HERE

Bids will be asked for in few days for the construction of a three-story garage to be built at Locust, Magee and Seitz streets for the government postal motor division. The plot of ground is 165 by 118 feet. The garage will be repair headquarters for all trucks in the postal division including Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia. The Pittsburgh postal service alone has 128 trucks.

The Postmaster Gene. l has an option on the property, and will rent it from the successful bidder for the construction of the building.



EXAMINATION of the celebration of Easter, evidenced in the last few days by the landoffice business done by candy stores, leads to some confusion. The myth of the rabbit, of course, is no stranger than the story of Santa Claus, but why eggs are also largely associated with the arrival of the bunny is somewhat puzzling to the inquiring student.

It would be far more plausible if the myth told something about the chicken coming along at Easter. Somehow it is easier to associate eggs with chickens than with rabbits.

THE bunny never has been as potent in keeping children on the straight and narrow path as his colleague, Mr. Claus. The mention of Santa Claus will often prompt a child to lead a better life by eating the crusts of bread and drinking an extra glass of milk, but no such magic comes from mention of the impending rabbit. Behind this ineffectiveness of the rabbit may be what we complained about a little earlier—that children look upon a rabbit as pretty unreal because he has assumed the prerogative of a chicken.

SMALL chicks are always appropriate at Easter time and that is one reason we caused to be hatched out in our incubator a small brood of our little feathered friends. They are out of the shell now three days and seem to like their new world.

OF COURSE, you won't appreciate this if you are not one of us chicken fanciers. They are not hard to raise and it's a lot of fun. The best way, we have found, is to purchase an incubator, then some eggs, after which you put the eggs in the incubator, and ask someone about the place to do whatever else the book of directions tells you. You wait 20 days—or is it 28—well, no matter you wait awhile and then one morning you go down to the cellar and see the little chicks.

ONE of the colored boys who works at Webster Hall became ill and had to lay off work a week or more. Upon his return, a friend inquired how he was getting along. "Well," said the colored boy, "I'm feeling much better and I'm greatly encouraged as my color is coming back again. I was very pale there for awhile."

TO THE uninitiated the stock boards in the brokerage houses downtown are nothing but a maze of unintelligible figures. More awe-inspiring, however, are those expert-players who take up their chairs at the start of the day's business and stay until the market closes, making notes, drawing diagrams and keeping pocket files of cards, all of which must mean that these gentlemen are doping out just what General Motors, Radio and the others are going to do.

THESE men guage the weather reports, watch the doings on the national and international political landscape, and consider every factor that they think will affect the board in front of them. Some of them, a spy confides, have made a fair living this way, making a trade or so a day that nets them an average of from $20 to $25 a day.

HABIT is a pernicious thing and now that Lent is over we can momentarily fall back into an old habit—which is picking the baseball winners for the coming season. We did it for about 10 years, never came close, but the habit grew and therefore we must again succumb: National League, St. Louis, Chicago, Pittsburgh, New York, Cincinnati, Boston, Brooklyn, and, of course, Philadelphia. We can tell you just why, too, but space does not permit.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore M. Herrin

Jerry Tells Herself She Hates Saxon, But in Her Heart She Loves Him

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good looking, charming and nineteen, falls in love with Saxon Rhodes, a young architect. Marza, her fascinating mother, warns her that idealists like Saxon make poor husbands. When he goes abroad to study, Jerry promises to wait for him. Jerry agrees to wait three years longer. She wonders whether Saxon loves her as completely as she loves him. Saxon's attention to Ora Pringle gives Jerry a pang of jealousy. They attend a week end party where things start to happen. She decides to give Saxon up. She discovers that Marza has another daughter of whose existence her husband had been ignorant. Marza tells Jerry that this sister of hers is dying and needs them both. Stephanie recovers and they go back home. The months pass, and Jerry has not seen Saxon. She goes to a house party and there meets Saxon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"WITH the whole ocean to roam, mountains to climb and skies to fly, you'd think we could make a wild, glittering adventure of it, wouldn't you? You'd think we'd be living furiously, jealous of each moment that eluded us; afraid that the time to die would arrive before we'd half gone through the blazing joy that living ought to be.

"What's wrong, I wonder, that we don't have a seething time in such a vast, thrilling playground?

"No wonder God has gone. He must have passed out of the picture in utter chagrin when he saw what pip-squeaks we turned out to be.

"With mad moments, 60 an hour handed to us free, all we can think of is to flop on sofas and languish in somebody's arms!"

The smile on Hugh's face broadened, rippled into a deep laugh. "That's not always an expression of poor humanity's incompetence, is it?

"You don't know how to play here in America. At least, it seems so to me. At Tahoe during the holidays the tavern was crowded. There was snow on all the mountains. In Switzerland, the whole population would be out skiing. They'd be going mad with the pleasure of it.

"It's the sport of kings. But there we sat around bridge tables playing a cent a point and drinking high-balls. Letting the snow and the magnificent fun of it melt away. All but a few game wardens who were enjoying themselves. One of these loaned me a pair of skis. We went to the summit. It was wonderful. But no one in the crowd could be induced to try the sport."

"Yet we all dream of seizing brilliant adventures," she answered, watching a yacht, poised delicate and phantom-like—a white butterfly on the water. "We all look forward to sweeping, golden loves and beautiful excitements.

"But this is the way our nights and days vanish."

"They need not, Jerry. You don't enjoy this—most of us don't. You can find the rich, satisfying life. You can find what you want—all that you want."

"Where!"

She glanced up suddenly to find that intent pleading sweetness hovering like a presence on his mouth.

At her question this quirked off in a laugh. "Why, with me, Jerry. With me if you'd care to look. Really—would you consider me at all?"

The oddest proposal she had ever received. Only his eyes, softly lighted and dark turned with a strained, seeking look to hers—touching her warmly.

"Will you consider me, Jerry?"

"Are you asking me to marry you, Hugh?"

"Not very cleverly. But in great earnestness. Yes — would you marry me, Jerry?"

Slowly—resting her chin in her hands. "I'd like to marry you, Hugh. But I'm not thinking of marriage. And I'm not wanting to marry. I'm all against it. And I couldn't now, anyway. I have to earn. I need greatly to earn."

"I'm not poor, Jerry. We'd have a delightful time together. Why should you be against marriage?"

"Oh, I think it a fatal mistake to marry for happiness. I think a person should find happiness and satisfaction first and marry second. You don't become happy through marriage any more than you become pop-eyed through it."

"You said you'd like to marry me, why?"

"I like you. There's a nicety about you that I crave in men."

"Perhaps you'll think me over then? Jerry, we could be very gay together. You're somewhat of a vagabond and I'm wholly one. And if you'd give me half a chance I could be most awfully nice."

She was held by the solemn sweetness of his eyes—fascinated by this, so intent against the light play of words.

He did not attempt to kiss her—did not even clasp her hands. And yet she felt a terrible earnestness—a suffering eagerness even in his laugh.

She lay awake and contrasted this attitude of Hugh's with the look, half patronage, half sneer, on Saxon's face. Oh, what a sap—what an utter fool to have succumbed to that power of his. To have melted in his arms—to have stood there white and motionless, feeling the world obliterated when his lips touched hers.

She recalled this and was crushed with self-contempt. She lay very quiet, eyes burning and a fixed smile on her lips. Yes—if he had taken her hand she would have followed wherever he led!

Her heart throbbed hotly—Wherever he led!

She hated him. She would never stir to him again. She would crush that insane, stupid thing—that fool Jerry King, who clamored and yearned for him—she would crush her to death. Now—tonight—

Again and again and again the two Saxons marched before her—the one with warm, beautiful eyes summoning hers with that: "Never one before you—never another after you—"

And the other, hard sneering: "Same little censer—keep the cock-eyed world straight, won't you!"

She was white and sick with it. "I'm going to sleep!" she determined angrily. "TO SLEEP!"

She lay quiet and rigid. Suddenly she was listening—tense—startled.

A long-drawn sigh—a vague muffled sob—like a small frightened ghost in the dark.

Stealthily she waited. No mistake. Stephanie with her hands over her face crying in the dark.

CHAPTER XLIV.

STEPHANIE crying. The soft, uneven sound went pinching to Jerry's heart.

Gallant, winsome Stephanie finding her lot too bitter and weeping about it in the dark.

Jerry was suddenly confronted with Stephanie's face as it turned to hers with that excited: "You'll take me to a real fast party, Jerry, where they all get vastly tite? I've never been to such. When I get on my feet again, you'll take me? A promise?"

Wondrous pretty eyes swaggering with merriment. So much so you almost thought she didn't care for this or that; didn't think about herself at all. A shock to find Stephanie crying.

Abruptly Jerry was remembering. The doctor was to make arrangements for the operation; was to have told them today. Was Stephanie afraid of this? Worried for the outcome?

There was to be a bone graft to stiffen her spine so that it would bear the weight of her body. Then she would walk—freely as ever.

Had anything happened? Had he found some complication?

Jerry reached over and lightly touched Stephanie's arm. She repeated this twice: "You're awake. I heard you."

The hands came slowly down and in the vague, gray moonlight streaming their porch, Stephanie's eyes twinkled.

"You were crying."

"I was not—just grabbing off some deep breaths."

"I've had a few deep breaths myself, and that's not the way it's done," said Jerry, stepping from her bed and climbing in with Stephanie.

"Oh, all right, then! I weep to prove to myself that I'm feminine. This is the second time in my life. Once was a year ago when Marza went home and left me."

"And tonight?"

A faint, whimsical laugh: "You'll think me an utter loon. I was just lying here and featuring a meeting with old Stephen Marsh—my father's father. Marza believes he's living. Stephen was his only child and he adored him. I was just wondering what would happen if I should pay him a visit—if I just went bursting in on him—the living image of his son. After all these years—"

"And I suppose you featured him sobbing with delight and bequeathing you a million dollars?"

Stephanie's laugh simmered to a long, child-like gurgle: "Exactly! Why else does one think of phantom grandfathers?. That's what made me weep—the million dollars and the overjoyed way he received me. But principally the million. I wonder if he's rich and if he would like to make me his heir?"

Stephanie's hands went stealing up to her face. She said in a trembling quiet: "Jerry, there's a chance that I won't be able to walk. I'll be dependent all my life. I'll just keep on costing and costing. And you'll have to keep on working because of me. It's—it's more than I can stand—a whole life of that."

"Who said you won't walk?"

"The doctor and Marza were talking. I wanted to know. I tried to listen. I heard something. Then Marza evaded. But that's what the doctor told her. It's not certain. I can move my legs all right, but the pain of bearing my own weight—well, it may prove too great.

"I can't feature it," she went on, the quiet now hot and smothering. "I can't feature a wheel-chair for life.

"Jerry, where is the money coming from? I'll be months in the hospital again. I'm just cleaning you and Marza out. That's hard to bear—terribly."

"No—it isn't! Take your fool hands down! Whoever heard of bawling over money? Besides, we've plenty. This property is valuable. This job is the best thing that ever happened to me. I love it.

"Some day people are going to look with the same contempt on the idle woman as they now do on the idle man. A girl's got to take her choice—work or waste!

"You can't even give a poor goose free eats and unearned leisure without depraving it. The same for a woman.

"You'll walk all right," said Jerry, going back to the one fact that was significant; the one fact that appalled her. A wheel-chair for life!

"You'll walk. A doctor can't give a guarantee. He's not a painless dentist. He's got to protect himself against the danger of prophecy. But they said positively if your legs regained their power, you'd walk. And you're a strong little beast—aren't you . . ."

She dismissed Stephanie's fears. They took lodgings in her own thoughts.

"Is there a chance that she'll not walk?"

"Yes," said Marza, closing strained, bitter eyes, "there is."

They took Stephanie to the hospital. Early Tuesday morning they operated.

She was very gay about it—gayer than Marza or Jerry or Heinie.

"Come up one by one and kiss me twice and thrice. You, too, Heinie. I think I'll feel most vastly encouraged to be kissed by so knightly a knight!"

She looked exceedingly childish as she wrapped long, thin arms about Heinie's neck; as she kissed him and said brightly: "Thanks for all the darling things you've done and still will do in the sweet bye-and-bye."

Stephanie's merry eyes filled as she said this. They filled and smiled at Jerry.

"She loves him," thought Jerry with a pang. "Stephanie is in love with Heinie. And she knows it!"

They waited. Hours passing—each lost in thought—Marza with thoughts of the past—Jerry with fears for the future.

Stephanie loving Heinie—and he not caring for her. All through the world women aching and loving; men loving and leaving.

A bleak picture filed into her mind. Stephanie not cured—and she, Jerry, never winning back her love. Go on working and working. Taking care of Stephanie. Growing old like this — two sisters alone——

How inconceivable that Life should turn like this!

Marza sitting there with white, beautiful face still as a cameo—Marza going back through the years. That night when the word of George King's return sent her and Stephanie to cover; that heartbroken night when they closed their secret home and put the child away.

That more frightful time—that devastating noon when her husband started packing; when he snatched her back from Stephen and ordered her to start for home.

How she had kneeled on the floor begging him to free her; growing wild with threats and pleas.

"Yes—go! But I keep the child!"

He would take Jerry—this cold, tight-lipped man.

One child she must give up. So it was Stephen whom she loved and Stephen's child that she forsook. Terrible betrayal.

Stephen's child in there now battling for life, Marza's love in there—her lifelong, tragic love.

Jerry's hand touched her mother's. She tried to smile buoyantly.

Marza was grateful for this and proud as though an undeserved sweetness were granted.

Abruptly Jerry was on her feet—but Marza sat motionless. The doctor coming from that room—smiling.

He clasped Marza's hand: "It went very nicely. She should do well—very well."

"Oh, my dear—my pet," said Marza as they walked with swift, light steps to the street. "We have hope—at least we have hope."

That night Heinie came for Jerry. He called for her at the hospital.

"I'll be all right," Stephanie murmured, smiling. "Go and have a ride." She motioned for Jerry to stoop: "Why don't you be good to Heinie—why don't you?"

CHAPTER XLV.

HEINIE tucked a robe about her. "Don't mind if we stop? It's been a long time since you and I have had a chat, Jerry. Bet You've never been here before. Quiet, isn't it?"

"And poetic. I wonder who lives above that lovely old garden?"

"A Spaniard with seven kids. He buys bonds. I sold him $2,000 yesterday. A happy fellow, and his kids are all handsome and mannerly. He's a mechanic with a fine, deep appreciation of life. They save and live here where it's warm and cheap and beautiful. They know how to enjoy and get the most for little."

They looked down from a hill in Glenn Park. The houses were set far back with shrubby old gardens and at the end of the street, closing it, were two magnificent oaks that seemed to have watched the centuries.

Jerry took off her hat and slumped down against the cushions. She smiled, dreamily—very tired, as Heinie lighted her cigaret.

Love's Embers — Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By Adele Garrison

The Veritzens Depart, Leaving Two More or Less Perturbed Women

I COULD have shaken Mary Harrison cheerfully when I saw Noel Veritzen's eyes as he bade us good-night and went with his father to the waiting limousine. I knew that the elder Veritzen's unexpected and unexplainable invitation to his son to join him at the hotel, an action marking the end of years of estrangement—had raised the young violinist to an upper heaven of happiness. But Mary's unmistakable flouting of him, and her absorption in young Mr. George Logan Jackson, had effectually robbed him of elation, even though his attention to Eleanor Lincoln had told me that he did not intend to use his sleeve for a heart pocket any longer.

But he could not disguise the misery in his eyes, though his manner was debonair, careless, and, indeed, much livelier than usual. Mary, evidently piqued a bit by his farewell to Eleanor Lincoln, which she had seen, gave him no word beyond a careless "So long, Noel," to which the boy returned a perfunctory, although more courteous answer. And then the two were being driven swiftly away, and Dicky, Lillian, Mary and I were left alone on the veranda.

"It's too lovely a night to go in," Lillian said, "but I should only fall asleep if I stayed out, so I'm going upstairs. How about you, Madge?"

I responded promptly to the cue which I found in her words.

"I'm going with you," I laughed, "if only to insure myself from dozing on the stairs. Mary, it's time for youngsters to stop looking at the stars."

"I couldn't see them in another minute," she said, smiling, "for my eyes would be closed tight. So I shall trot docilely by your side. But that leaves you all alone, Uncle Dicky," she said, turning to the relative whom she dearly loves, and who was lighting his pipe, in evident preparation for a smoke upon the veranda.

"Please don't think me ungracious, dear," he told her, with a smile that I knew had cost him an effort, "but I shall be glad to be alone. I have some things to think out."

His good-night to Lillian and me was just that—two syllables which barely escaped curtness, and as I went upstairs with Lillian and Mary I had a little premonition that the things which Dicky meant to "think out" concerned me, and that a more or less unpleasant interview awaited me before Dicky's return to the city.

There is one advantage in holding active resentment against a person once loved. One does not dread an unpleasant interview with the object of one's rancor, and I was able to put it out of my mind and give heed to Mary's tug at my gown, which told me that she could not wait longer to hear the time of Philip Veritzen's forthcoming interview with her.

"Will you help me off with my gown, Mary?" I asked as we reached the top of the stairs, and Lillian, with a nodded good-night that did not deceive me, moved on to her own room. I knew that she would come back to my room when she was sure that Mary had gone to her own bed, and that there would be no interruptions to the questions I guessed she meant to put to me.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

JUDGING from the manner in which things are now shaping up in the Pittsburgh pitching department, it is pretty certain that the Pirates' hurler in the opening game at St. Louis next Wednesday will be either Burleigh Grimes or Remy Kremer.

Remy Kremer

Until a few days ago there appeared to be no doubt that Grimes would draw the initial slab assignment, inasmuch as he looked to be the only veteran flinger on the staff fit for a real championship game, but since Kremer held San Antonio runless for six innings, with only four hits, on Thursday, it is evident that the big ace is progressing rapidly toward condition after his illness and that it will be up to Manager Bush to make a selection between the spitballer and the Frenchman for the curtain-raiser.

KREMER'S fine showing against San Antonio two days ago must be considered as the attainment of permanent form, too, and not as a mere flash.

For Remy himself gave an advance line on his approaching fitness in Los Angeles last Sunday. A letter from that city discloses that a very close friend asked Kremer when he expected to be in shape to pitch, and received this reply, made in all seriousness: "I'll be ready to pitch the opening game if I am called upon that day."

WHETHER the assignment goes to Kremer or Grimes, the fans here at home may feel confident that the pitching job on the Pittsburgh side will be attended to in a satisfactory manner.

Grimes held his own against the Cardinals last year while pitching for the Giants, winning two games and losing the same number.

Kremer made a better record, hanging up three victories against two defeats. One of the defeats was a 1-to-0 affair, and the other was a loose-hitting game in which the Frenchman was nosed out in a relief role.

So even if Miljus, Hill and Meadows may require a few more days' rest, the Bucs appear to be "well fixed" for the first two games, at least.

AND for other early contests, Pirate followers have the word and good judgment for it that there is nothing to be worried about, as if the older hurlers are unable to work there is plenty of new high-grade material to be sent in instead.

Lester Bartholomew

Rarely has a club head manifested so much confidence in rookie pitchers as the owner of the Buccaneers displays in some of the young men whom Donie Bush is now endeavoring to polish up.

"I would not fear to take any chance on any one of four young pitchers in those early games before some of our mound veterans are right," said the local magnate. "The four are Brame, Bartholomew, Tauscher and Spencer. Fussell will make it five when his arm recovers. It is Manager Bush's judgment that one of them, perhaps two, may have to be 'placed' in some good minor league later because we cannot give all of them as much work as they will need, but right now they are

UNFAIRNESS CHARGED BY RANGER COACH

MONTREAL, April 7.—(AP.)—The Montreal Maroons, sporting a 2-goal advantage, will engage the New York Rangers, American group finalists, in the second game of the world series for the Professional Hockey League championship here tonight. The Maroons are the Canadian group champions.

All Stanley cup games will be played in the arena here, it was announced following a conference between Ranger and Maroon officials with President Frank Sadler of the league. The Rangers' home ice, at Madison Square Garden, is unavailable at present, due to the fact that the circus has possession of the Garden.

The Rangers are far from satisfied with their showing in the opening clash when the Maroons romped away with a 2 to 0 verdict. Coach Lester Patrick of the New York sextet is protesting vigorously against what he alleges is interference with his wings by the Maroon checks.

Patrick claims that the Maroons' system of smothering wings is not the legitimate practice of skating alongside a check, but is direct interference with players not carrying the puck. He said that the referees warned players for interference but did not penalize them as called for under the rules.

On the other hand, the Maroons insist that their system of play is in absolute conformity with the ice regulations.

Finnish Runner Gains

GROOM, Tex., April 7.—(AP.)—Olli Wanttinen, diminutive Finn runner of New York City, was the first of the 88 surviving athletes in the cross-country foot race to reach Groom yesterday. He covered the 40.6 miles from Amarillo in 5:56.

By his performance, Wanttinen edged into sixth place in elapsed time, nosing ahead of Louis Perrella, Albany, N. Y. The Finn's elapsed time for the 1,279.6 miles from Los Angeles is 229:14:17.

John Salo, Passaic, N. J., who is well established in fourth place with total time of 230:10:14, finished second in 6:45. The next finishers in order were Giusto Umek, Italy; Harry Abramowitz, New York; Mike Joyce, Cleveland, and Pete Gavuzzi, England.

Arne Souminen, Detroit, who leads with elapsed time of 204:10:14, trailed along in eleventh place.

The field of 90 which started from Amarillo was reduced by two when Andrew Gemmell, Oakland, and Dick Lesage, Montreal, dropped out.

CARR CREEK OUT OF TOURNEY

CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP.)—Vienna, Ga., with one of the greatest passing combinations ever to play in the national high school basketball tournament, last night defeated the scrapping Carr Creek five from the Mountain Hamlet of Dirk, Ky., 22 to 11. Vienna meets Ashland, Ky., winner over Carr Creek in four overtime periods in their state tournament, today in the semi-final round of the University of Chicago tourney.

Grand Forks, N. D., with a team of long shot artists, advanced to the semi-finals, defeating Alexandria, La., 23 to 22 in a brilliant last-minute rally.

Grand Forks will play Canton, Ill., today in the second semi-final match.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 7.—The Tigers will hardly win the American League flag, yet George Moriarty has surrounded himself with a peppy crew, several of his players being proficient in slugging. Heilmann, Fothergill and McManus are all long distance swatters.

McMANUS has changed from second to third base, rounding out an infield consisting of Johnny Neun, Gehringer, Tavener and Marty. The latter is a gingery athlete; McManus was one of the liveliest players engaged in the Pirate-Tiger tussle.

HEILMANN'S homer went over the right center screen; his first double carried to the left field bleacher, where Barnhart came within an inch of a one-handed catch; Harry's second double was the best drive of the entire contest. It was a liner that hit the top of the distant screen in left center. The Buccos now know why he hits around .400. Plenty of power and a great batting eye.

Huskies Lose Race To U. of Cal. Crew

SEATTLE, Wash., April 7.—(AP.)—In a thrilling race over a three-mile course, the University of California varsity crew defeated the Huskies of the University of Washington in their annual regatta on Lake Washington yesterday. The time was 18:10:02.

A last minute spurt by the Washington crew came too late to avoid defeat at the hands of the Bear rowers, who had gained a half length lead at the two-mile mark. The stroke of the Huskies was increased near the end, but the Californians met the challenge and crossed the line holding a half length margin.

Washington's defeat in the varsity came after both its freshmen and junior varsity crews had outclassed their California opponents. The Husky yearlings showed superior form to win the freshman event over a two-mile course by two and a half lengths in 12:06:10.

The Washington junior varsity finished eight lengths ahead in a three-mile race. The time was 19:02:02.

UMPS TO MEET

CHICAGO, April 7.—(INS.)—A meeting of umpires of the American Association will be held here next Monday to plan for the coming season. The following umpires will officiate at the beginning of the season: McIlrew and Rue, at Toledo, Johnson and Goetz, at Columbus, Powell and McCafferty, at Indianapolis, and Connolly and Shannon at Louisville.

Illinois U. Meets Trojans on Track Today

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—(AP.)—The first meeting of the Universities of Illinois and Southern California in any sport found the track and field squads of the two institutions aligned in an intersectional struggle here today. The Trojans were favored to trounce the Illini.

Perhaps the greatest interest was centered on the veteran Harry Gill's collection of distance stars. Five men, Capt. Fairfield, Abbott, McElwee, Novak and Stein, appeared certain to give their team a clean sweep in the mile and two-mile.

Against Southern California's great sprinting duo, Charley Borah, and Weldon Draper, the Illinois coach pitted two plucky sprinters, Timm and Hale. A lone sophomore hurdler, R. A. Rodgers, carried the colors of Illinois in the Timber events, against the numerous star barrier men of Troy's squad, Jimmy Payne, Cliff Reynolds, Alex Graham and Charles Webber.

CANUCK TOPS FIELD IN TORONTO GRIND

TORONTO, Ont., April 7.—(AP.)—Timing himself with a wrist watch, Billy Reynolds of Galt triumphed over a field of Dominion and American runners yesterday in a 15-mile Marathon of a civic athletic carnival here. His time was one hour, 27 minutes, 17 1-5 seconds.

Reynolds ran with a smooth mechanical stride and forged ahead of Johnny Miles, former Sydney Mines, N. S., star, who represented Hamilton. At the finish he was comparatively fresh and more than half a mile in front of Fred Ward of the Millrose A. C. of New York, who was second.

U. S. Wins Opening Davis Cup Duels

MEXICO CITY, MEX., April 7.—(AP.)—Before a crowd of 1,500 tennis enthusiasts, distinguished by the presence of Ambassador Morrow, the United States Davis cup players won with ease the first two singles events from Mexico in the first elimination round of the American zone yesterday.

William T. Tilden, 2nd, believed by observers to have rarely if ever been in better form, defeated Robert C. Kinsey, native born American playing for Mexico, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

Before the Tilden triumph, John Hennessey vanquished Ricardo Tapia, 6-2, 9-7, 6-1.

If the Americans win the doubles match today when Tilden and Arnold Jones oppose Kinsey and Alfonso Unda, Mexico will be eliminated from the Davis cup play, but exhibition contests then will be held on tomorrow.

The Tilden-Kinsey match, which was the chief attraction, was a walkaway for Tilden who was greatly superior to Kinsey from every standpoint. Tilden's terrific services cutting corners were often untouchable. Kinsey worked the hardest and waged a game battle with some brilliant work but was outclassed.

Kinsey's game in the first set was won by fine placings, in the third set, his placings improved greatly and both he and Tilden played extraodinary tennis. At one time he was on even terms with Big Bill with games four all.

The Hennessey-Tapia match gave the 18-year-old Mexican youth, who is in his first international play, an opportunity to demonstrate skill and gameness. Tapia, considered one of the most promising players of Mexico, is very small and slight physically but he covered the ground with utmost agility and returned some of Hennessey's hardest drives in fine fashion.

Will Make New Try Today

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 7.—(AP.)—Ray Keech, Philadelphia race driver, after making two test runs on the beach here, one at an average speed of 75 miles an hour and another at 100, decided to postpone his attempt to lower the world's record of 206.9 miles an hour until today.

Driving the huge 36-cylinder triplex car of J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer, Keech said he found beach conditions unfavorable for a record run yesterday.

American Automobile Association officials viewed the test runs and gave their approval of the triplex as it now stands, which automatically will sanction any record broken. Installment of a reverse gear removed the disqualification of the triplex which was placed on her in February.

Wilbur Shaw will try to break the world four-cylinder speed record next week with a Whippet which has been shipped from Toledo.

Tom Jenkins Denies That He's Dead

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 7.—(AP.)—Tom Jenkins, the famous old professional wrestler, not only is far from being dead but ready to demonstrate it for the benefit of anybody in general and particularly William A. Brady, under whose name an article in this week's issue of a weekly magazine, describing a match at Cleveland between Jenkins and Youssouf, the "terrible Turk," says:

"Jenkins never recovered. He suffered severe injuries that indirectly caused his death some years later."

This match was staged some 30 years ago. Jenkins, now an instructor at the United States Military Academy here, still is able to take care of himself in grappling with his young cadet pupils.

YALE, ARMY, COLUMBIA SHARE FENCING HONORS

NEW YORK, April 7.—(INS.)—Yale, Army and Columbia divided honors in the intercollegiate fencing tournament just concluded here.

Yale won the "three-weapon" cup with 15 points scored in the foils, sabres and epees. Army was second with 12 points and Columbia third with 11.

Dernell Every of Athens, N. Y., Yale captain and foils champion, led the Elis to the team championship in the foils. The swordsmanship of Thomas J. Sands of Dayton, O., enabled Army to retain the team championship in the epee division. Columbia captured the sabre honors.

Other colleges competing were Cornell, Harvard, Navy and Dartmouth.

DEMPSEY HEADS EAST FOR TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey, onetime king of all the heavyweights, put on his traveling clothes today for a trip to New York, where he will engage his former manager, Jack Kearns, in legal battle.

The impending litigation, scheduled on April 16, is based on charges by Kearns that Dempsey was under contract with him when he fought Gene Tunney at Philadelphia.

CRITICS PICK YANKS TO REPEAT FLAG VICTORY

The Huskies Evidently Were Not So Husky Yesterday

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

BOWLING and BILLIARDS

SCATTERING the pins for a total of 2,402, the Arcade team of McKeesport, winner of the five-men event in the annual Southern duckpin tourney recently, went into first place after the fifth day's competition in the Markey Square bowling tournament yesterday.

In the doubles, Homish and Emery continue to hold first place. The Kunkle-Funk pair rolled into third place with a 980 score.

The high singles score took a big jump, Emery smashing through for a 387 score and Adolphson toppling the maples for 372.

HOPPE, LAYTON LEAD

CHICAGO, April 7.—(INS.)—Willie Hoppe, the old master of cueism, seems to be getting more cunning with each succeeding game of the current national three-cushion billiard championship tournament. Hoppe last night smothered Len Penney of Chicago, 50 to 28, for his third straight victory in as many starts.

Hoppe and Johnny Layton of St. Louis are now the only undefeated players, Allen Hall also of St. Louis, having gone down in defeat to Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago. The score was 50 to 23 in 55 innings.

In the other games yesterday, Champion Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia defeated Cowboy Weston of Pittsburgh, 50 to 35, and Gus Copulos of Detroit beat Earl Lookabaugh of Chicago, 50 to 35.

EICHENMILLER IN TIE

Defeating William Gobi, who substituted for Joseph Currie of Ellis, 45 to 43, William Eichenmiller of Ruch's, last night went into a tie with Harry Quinn, of Kenny's, for fifth place in the Pittsburgh Parent-school Billiard League. Gobi had the high run of the block, five, and gave Eichenmiller a battle all the way. Eichenmiller's best cluster was four.

SOCCER by TOM BIRKS

OUTSIDE of the replayed schedule in the West Penn cup and the games for the Olympic benefit fund soccer football for the season is rather passe in Western Pennsylvania. Cleveland is just getting into the throes of its league engagements but for this district, the ping of the horsehide is taking the place of the thud in a soccer game, methinks.

At Alberg's Olympic chances remain a lau[illegible]rude jolt in St. Louis and With Frees that we have, are still finally[illegible]g what happened. This all?" A great game, strai[illegible]speer.

Dent McSkimming, commenting editorially in one of St. Louis' leading soccer columns, could not become enthused over the St. Louis efforts. He stated that the passing was anything but perfect, probably due to the high wind. He also stated that the Pittsburgh players were anything but complimentary in their hotel after the game regarding the work of the referee, a home product.

In the communication from St. Louis first offering West Penn a game it stated that an out-of-town referee would be used, Stark, Detroit, preferably, if he could be secured. However, Murphy handled the game and possibly Heidelberg did not get the edge.

This afternoon the West Penn All-Stars will meet the Union Switch & Signal outfit at Swissvale. This club, led by Gaylor and Thomas, is working hard to tie to raise funds for that Olympic quota and is expecting the support of all local fandom.

What has happened to the scheduled game between Douglass A. C. and the Pittsburgh Celtics to be played in the re-opening of the West Penn cup? The date suggested was April 8 which is tomorrow, but nothing has been heard since as to whether or not the Celtics have decided to retire from the tourney.

Announcement has been made that Pittsburgh will meet Mustard Hollow at Gallatin tomorrow.

It is the intention of the local cup committee to go through with the playing of the four games mentioned at the meeting in the senior championship. It is advisable to get the games under way or else the players will find the weather just as warm as it was in St. Louis last Sunday.

SOCCER FINAL TOMORROW

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—The Chicago Bricklayers, champions of the western division, and New York Nationals, eastern titleholders, will meet in the grand final for the national soccer challenge cup here tomorrow afternoon.

Giants Stretch Winning Streak To 13 in Row

NEW YORK, April 7. (INS.)—Of Greater New York's three big league teams, the Giants made the best record in exhibition contests in the South. They won 29 out of 34 and have been victorious in their last 13 starts. The Brooklyn Robins won 14 out of 20 and the Yankees only five out of 17.

Today the Giants will endeavor to celebrate Manager John McGraw's birthday properly by beating the Senators in Washington. They trounced the Nats again in Norfolk, Va., yesterday, 10 to 2. Lindstrom got a home run and Jim Chaplin, rookie pitcher, held the Senators to seven hits.

Rate Macks Second Best

By ALAN J. GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—The poor showing of the New York Yankees in their spring training games has failed to shake the confidence of the big majority of experts that the world's champions will again lead the American League parade.

These newspaper critics may be riding for a fall, as most of them did last year when they picked the Athletics to win, but 85 per cent of those polled by the Associated Press this spring are convinced that Babe Ruth and his mates will repeat.

Forty-two out of 49 writers and sports editors who contributed their opinions to this second annual consensus of the Associated Press pick the Yankees to make it three straight pennants. Tossing out the result of southern exhibitions, these critics believe that even though the race this year may be closer than in 1927, when the Yankees finished 19 up on their nearest rivals, there is no reason to doubt that the powerful attack of the New Yorkers will again be dominant.

RATE A'S SECOND

Of the handful of experts who predict the Yankees will be bumped off their high perch, five select the Athletics, led by Cobb and Speaker, as pennant-winners, while two name the Washington Senators as first choices.

This minority places the Yankees second in six selections and third in one list.

In sharp contrast to the National League selections, where the Pirates are choices in a wide range of opinion, there is remarkably little difference of opinion about the rating of American League clubs. In fact they are picked right down the line to finish exactly as they did last fall.

The Detroit Tigers round out the first division in the consensus and a pennant contending "big four" that is conceded a big edge over the other half of the circuit. In fact only four critics think well enough of the chances of any of the other teams to pick them for first division berths. Three of these ballots go to the Chicago White Sox and one to the Cleveland Indians.

PICK SOX FIFTH

The White Sox are rated fifth and Cleveland sixth in the slate, with the Browns conceded only a slight edge over the Boston Red Sox in the battle to escape last place.

The following "box score" sums up the expert opinion, showing the number of selections for each position and the points, calculated on a basis of eight for first place, seven for second position, etc.:

Club	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Pts.

Hudkins Must Pick From Two Bouts

By SID MERCER,
International News Service, Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 7.—(INS.)—Between now and next Tuesday Ace Hudkins must decide whether he wants to fight Joe Dundee for the welterweight title in New York or Mickey Walker for the middleweight title in Chicago.

One of those ultimatums, which are now all the style in cauliflower diplomacy, has been issued by Jess McMahon in behalf of the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

McMahon has Dundee signed to defend his title at the Yankee Stadium here in June. Hudkins was hot after this match during the time Dundee was under suspension in New York. Now that Joseph is eligible again, the Nebraska Wildcat has become very tame.

BAKER WANTS BOUT

Sergt. Sammy Baker is anxious to take Ace's place and he will get the fight if Hudkins doesn't come in by Tuesday.

Jack Kearns has agreed to let Walker meet Hudkins in Chicago on July 19, but the Ace is quoted from California as preferring Dundee.

Max Waxman, Dundee's manager, is here to get action. If McMahon has sent another batch of wires to California and is awaiting a reply that will settle this momentous question.

Dundee expects to have two or three "warm-ups" this month and next. He has been matched with Joe Simonich at the White City Arena in Chicago, but there is a mixup in dates on account of the postponement of his Philadelphia engagement with Lew Tendler.

LEAVES FOR FRISCO

Michael McTigue departed for San Francisco last night, accompanied by Charley Johnston. McTigue meets Armand Emanuel on April 22 in Frisco.

Jack Sharkey will train at Gus Wilson's camp near Orangeburg, N. Y., for his fight with Delaney at the Garden on April 30. Sharkey has heretofore preferred the city gymnasiums but this time he will get a lot of the open air stuff.

Danny Dunn departed for Cleveland last night after drawing down Johnny Risko's 5,000 forfeit for Tunney. Dunn said that he had agreed to let Risko substitute for either Heeney or Tunney in the event that neither was unable to fight in July, but that he had made no other tieup with Tex Rickard. Risko is available for any promoter. He has a dozen offers.

DUNDEE, SIMONICH MATCHED

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—Joe Dundee of Baltimore, world's welterweight champion, has been matched for a 10-round bout with Joe Simonich, Butte, Mont., boxer, in Chicago on April 16. The match will not be a championship affair, since it has been closed at 150 pounds.

MULLEN GETS PERMIT

CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP.)—The state boxing commission granted a permit to Promoter Jim Mullen to conduct a boxing show on Soldier's Field on July 19, the day on which Mickey Walker has agreed to defend his middleweight championship against any opponent, probably Ace Hudkins. "The Nebraska Wildcat."

Mullen said he expected to come to terms with Hudkins before nightfall. Walker, he said will engage in at least two non-titular fights before July 19.

OLYMPIC CLUB WINS IN WATER POLO TEST

CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP.)—The Olympic Club of San Francisco will be one of the finalists in the National A. A. U. water polo championships tonight, but who will be their opponent had not been decided early today.

The Olympic Club defeated Stanford University, 6 to 5. The other semi-final game between the Chicago A. A. and the Illinois A. C., Chicago, ended in a dispute which the judges were hopeful of settling during the day.

The tournament is being held to determine America's entrant in the Olympic games.

VOIGT, HOMANS TIE

PINEHURST, N. C., April 7.—(AP.)—George J. Voight of Washington, D. C., and Eugene Homans, the 19-year-old Princeton freshman, shared honors at the end of the first day's qualification play at the twenty-eighth annual North and South amateur championships. Both scored 39-34—73. E. Ellsworth Giles, of Pittsburgh, was among the leaders with a 76.

IN THE TRAINING CAMPS

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—New York baseball clubs were back in major league territory today after a sudden suggestion of a belated Yankee effort to share in the glory that has been the Giants'—a triumphant spring journey through the south.

Playing at Charlotte, N. C., yesterday the world champions took advantage of a sensational advance in the home-run market to store 23 runs against the local Hornets of the Sally League. The American Leaguers went ahead of their National League rivals for total scoring in a spring game but McGraw's men retired the opening title. The Yankees batted six in one frame, while the Giants counted 17 in one inning at Chattanooga when the final score was 18 to 8. Charlotte scored 10 runs, the Yankees' hitting proving better than their pitching.

The game at Charlotte permitted Lou Gehrig, junior member of the firm of Ruth & Gehrig, home-run specialists, to qualify for 1928 with his first home runs of the practice period. He smashed two out of the park, but his partner in crime against pitchers, the big Babe matched his effort and ran his string for April to four.

The Giants also collected their quota of glory by stopping Washington for the sixth time in a row. The senators won the first game of the inter-league series in March and have not been able to repeat. The Giants marched to their thirteenth straight victory in a score of 10 to 2, another pitcher finishing the job he started. Jim Chaplin, the former collegian, demonstrated that he could pitch a ball game.

Extra efforts were needed in the Philadelphia city series. The Athletics downing the Phillies 6 to 5 in 11 innings. Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, Connie Mack's grand old men, figured at bat and afield.

As the Boston Braves are beating their way slowly toward New York to open the National League season, Capt. Rogers Hornsby is standing alone on the quarter deck of the ship. His manager, Jack Slattery, has been summoned to Boston to confer with President Emil Fuchs on the welfare of both the Braves and its adjunct, the Providence club. This conference cause Boston fans to wonder if Hornsby was to be made manager, captain and leading batsman, but the president disclaimed any intention of letting Slattery go before he starts.

The champion Pirates, who have found the West an unprofitable battle ground, fell 6 to 3 before the Detroit Tigers at Dallas, Tex. Burleigh Grimes got out before much of the shooting started.

Eighteen-year-old Mel Harder could not hold a lead George Uhle turned over to him and Louisville scored five runs in one inning to stop the Cleveland Indians, 6 to 3.

Ted Lyons was too tough for Indianapolis and the White Sox won a light hitting game, 4 to 0.

Brooklyn coasted home against Raleigh of the Piedmont League, Del Bissonnette's home run with the bases full proving helpful in the 12-to-0 victory.

good serviceable pitchers and can go in and pitch when needed."

PRESIDENT DREYFUSS will leave tonight on a business trip, to be absent almost a week. After he has attended to the business matter he will join the Pirates Tuesday in Paducah, Ky., his old home town, and will accompany them to St. Louis to witness the opening pennant game on Wednesday, after which he will return to Pittsburgh.

NOT all of the fight followers will be picking Jack Zivic to win when he meets Jack Katkish in the feature bout of the final show of Pittsburgh's indoor boxing season at Motor Square Garden on April 16.

Katkish will have many supporters on account of the wallop that he has been displaying in recent fights.

In his last four bouts, Katkish has scored one knockout and seven knockdowns, and of the seven knockdowns five were for a count of nine, the bell saving his opponent from the fateful 10 on one occasion.

NOW that it is generally believed that the reinstated Earl Sande will ride in the Kentucky Derby, the turf fans are wondering what entry he will ride.

Joseph E. Widener.

Sande is likely to be in great demand. He is under contract to Joseph E. Widener, whose command ran second last year but Widener thinks none of his horses is good enough to have a chance in the race and will not be represented.

It is possible that Sande will ride one of the two horses (Finality and Arcade) entered by his employer's brother, George Widener, but the general opinion is that he will be allowed to accept any offer that he desires in which event there is certain to be a lively scramble for his services.

NOTES of the BOXERS

LARRY BRIGNOLIA and Phil Scollo have been matched for the eight-round semi-final to the Jack Zivic-Jack Katkish bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Joe Louder of Arlington Heights will appear in the second bout against the best opponent obtainable likely Johnny Vitko.

Rob Moody, Freeport Negro, who recently won the national amateur junior heavyweight championship at Detroit, will compete in the A. M. A. senior tournament at Motor Square Garden next Friday and Saturday nights for the right to fight in the Olympic trials at Boston later. The tourney entries close Monday.

Paul Goldstein, local lightweight, left last night for New York to finish his training for a 10-round bout with Mickey Chapin at Newark, N. J., Monday night. He also meets Maxie Strub at Erie next Friday night. Phil had expected to call off these bouts because of a swollen left hand, but treatments have enabled him to get the fist in working condition sooner than he expected.

TOMMY ARMOUR on GOLF

By TOMMY ARMOUR,
U. S. and Canadian Open Champion

THERE are certain golfers who think that the longer the swing, the longer the shot. This isn't true, of course, any more than the belief that the player can get more distance, especially on his wood club shots, by using an extra heavy club. If the heavy club can be swung and timed to bring the clubhead against the ball at the same speed that a lighter club would carry, more distance ought to result. Also, it is obvious that a reasonable length of arc is necessary to get up speed with the clubhead, which calls for a reasonably long swing on all full shots.

But for every player who underswings there are dozens who overswing. The latter fault is frequently the real explanation of a player's troubles. He takes the club back too far, and falls into grief in two general ways. In the first place, a long sweeping backswing means a long downswing which is much harder to time correctly than a short swing. In the second place, the long swing is much harder to control in the matter of bringing the club face squarely against the ball, and results in consequent bad direction.

There is rarely any need in taking the club back to where the shaft tilts downward from the hands in a line below the horizontal, and that applies to drivers, brassie and long irons as well. Some of the best known players go beyond the horizontal, but it is a question whether the extra length is helpful. They have merely developed their game that way, more by accident than design. And for the players of less skill, I think there is no question but that stopping the club short of the horizontal is much to be preferred over going beyond.

But the fault is not confined to long shots. Even in short approaches one frequently sees the club carried back much further than it should be. I know one fine amateur who had quite a time in overcoming that tendency. He had a way of taking the club back to a vertical position for even a short pitch. He finally conquered it, and it was no great time before he won the championship.

It is a difficult matter, of course, to say just how far back the club should be taken for a shot of any given distance. But this one general bit of advice I can and will give: If your timing is bad, and you are hitting one shot to the right and the next to the left and so on, try shortening your back swing. Try it for playing shots from 75 to 100 yards from the green. You will be surprised how far the ball will go on a short swing, where you hit through crisply. The shorter shots are urged for experimentation, for it is easier to gage the backswing on them. But the same is true for the long ones as well. If you are doubtful whether you pivot properly it is especially advisable to hold the swing down. This advice also holds good on the putting green. Make a test for yourself on how far you can putt the ball with a firmly hit stroke on a backswing of no more than 12 or 14 inches. And remember that proportionately the longer shots work out just about the same.

PIRATES

clash was held as per schedule, the Bushwhackers taking a 6 to 3 beating at the hands of the club which featured the Pirate manager for many years.

Dodie said this morning he probably would start Erwin Brame against the Chicks in the opener. Glenn Spencer is carded for the relief job. The departure of Carmen Hill for treatment at Lanesville, together with the sore arm owned by Lee Meadows, makes it necessary for Rush to call upon some of his reservists.

Harry Heilmann, champion batter of the American League, was the fly in the ointment for the Buccos as they were made to taste defeat in Dallas. The big rightfielder was the batting hero of the clash with a homer, two doubles and a single.

Burleigh Grimes and Fred Fussell worked the game for Pittsburgh, the veteran with the spitball was the victim of Heilmann's homer with a single thrown in. Harry made both his two-suckers off the lefthander.

The play of the Pirates was very ragged in spots. On offensive the Pittsburghers were nil until the ninth inning when they broke out all over with basehits. Five clean drives in the final round, however, failed to overcome the lead gained earlier by the Bengals.

Grimes had a lot of stuff but Burleigh had little chance to get out in front in view of the tissue paper attack of his mates.

Josh Billings and Hoot Gibson, a couple of clever right handers, did the hurling for the Tigers. The former is a spectacled twirler, and he showed the Buccos the swiftest ball they had seen this year.

Practice and more practice is the plan of manager Bush of the Pirates who this morning were given another of those morning drills.

Frisby Will Harness Nature in New Plan!

Dryfus Doakes, who has indorsed Congressman Frisby's seed plan in behalf of the Anti-Saloon League.

WASHINGTON — Although the Government no longer supplies Congressman Frisby with free garden seeds to send to his admirers, he has worked out a self-sustaining seed distribution plan.

"To everyone who sends me 10 cents in stamps," announced Mr. Frisby today, "I will send a genuine birdseed.

"This seed should be placed in an incubator and Mother Nature will do the rest, bless her soul!

"I want everyone in this land to have a song bird. What could be more beautiful than the twitter of our little feathered friends, warbling a continuous roundelay of praise to their benefactor, Horace Frisby?"

WE'LL BITE, HENRY:
WHAT WILL SHE DO?
(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

Sheriff Garrett says Henry Wolf, who is in jail for assaulting his wife, is very philosophical. I've got it easy in jail, Henry said. I can sit in here and read and smoke. She'll be coming in asking to have me released before long. How will she get the corn shucked? What will she do when the interest comes due?

The difference between Brigham Young and some of our movie stars is that Brigham had all his wives at the same time.

Why Pledge-Breaking By Coal Companies Is of National Concern

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Charles M. Schwab have declined to answer questions put to them by The Sun-Telegraph. The questions related to the serious charge that coal companies controlled by these gentlemen broke a contract with their workers. The Pittsburgh Coal Company, similarly accused, has also evaded questions designed to throw light on the transaction.

In thus dodging the issue the accused have done no more than they did when called before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in its inquiry into the matter.

They have been given every opportunity to justify their conduct, and have failed. The inevitable conclusion is that they cannot justify it. Hence it is not to be wondered at that three United States Senators, members of the investigating committee, have stated, publicly and independently of each other, that the companies concerned are guilty as accused.

The verdict of the three Senators is the more impressive because they often see things from different viewpoints. Two are Democrats, one a Republican. Two are Westerners, one an Easterner. Two are lawyers, one a dirt farmer. Two are conservatives, one a progressive.

The Senators who have publicly asserted that the Consolidation Coal Company of Mr. Rockefeller, the Bethlehem Mines Corporation of Mr. Schwab, and the Pittsburgh Coal Company broke legally and morally binding wage agreements with their employes are:

Robert F. Wagner, Tammany Hall Democrat of New York, formerly justice of the Supreme Court of that state.

Frank R. Gooding, stand-pat Republican of Idaho, an agriculturist.

Burton K. Wheeler, insurgent Democrat of Montana, an attorney.

The accused companies have tried to mislead the senatorial inquisitors and the public. In their effort to escape the shame that attaches to pledge-breaking, they have brought in irrelevant matters, engaged in hair-splitting, and pleaded that the end justifies the means.

The simple facts are that the Consolidation Coal Company, the Bethlehem Mines Corporation and the Pittsburgh Coal Company signed agreements with the United Mine Workers to pay their miners certain wages from April 1, 1924, to March 31, 1927, and that before the three-year period was up they reduced their wages below the scale provided in the contract and evicted from the company houses the families of miners who would not accept the cut.

Many other companies entered into agreements with the United Mine Workers precisely the same as those signed by the Consolidation Coal Company, the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, and the Pittsburgh Coal Company. Most of them complied faithfully with the terms. One after another of the executive officers of coal companies that made these compacts has come before the Senate committee and testified under oath that he considered it a legally and morally binding contract.

For a great corporation to break its word to its workers and destroy their faith in contracts is a dangerous thing. It is dangerous to the well-being of the whole country, because it encourages agitators who preach that justice cannot be had under the "capitalist" system.

The Senate, representing the United States government and the American people, has rightly been concerned over the matter. In the resolution, passed unanimously, in which it directed the Interstate Commerce Committee to inquire into conditions in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, it gave specific instructions to ascertain if wage agreements had been abrogated.

It is important that Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Schwab, the Pittsburgh Coal Company and other corporations should know that the public views pledge-breaking with stern disaproval and unmitigated disgust.

SOME EASTER RABBITS

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Story of Scorpio

THE constellation Scorpion (the variant spelling "Scorpius" is an abomination), crawling with uplifted two-pointed sting, across the middle of the southern horizon on clear, moonless evenings during midsummer is a sight never to be forgotten. In form it is one of the most striking of the constellations, and except the Great Dipper there is none more closely resembling the object whose name it bears. It looks its name, and its great red heart star, Antares, seems glowing with fierce anger, the fieriest star in the heavens—and possibly the hugest in the universe, with a diameter of four hundred million miles.

* * *

In May, when Scorpio rises in the east, Orion sinks in the west. There is an ancient romance of gods and demigods connected with that. Aratos was the best teller of all these undying legends. Of this one he tells how bold Orion laid hands upon Artemis (Diana).

" . . . when in Scio
With mighty club he chased the monsters of the forest,
She, dashing in twain the island's central mountain range,
From the yawning gulf sent against him far other monster,
The Scorpion, who him struck and slew, gigantic though he stood,
Foe more gigantic, because he outraged Artemis divine.
And therefore, say they, still when the horizon shows
The Scorpion, Orion o'er the western rim retreats."

The astrologers have given a bad reputation to Scorpio. They considered it a sign accursed (it is one of the members of the zodiac circle). It was the "house" of Mars, and some said Mars, the god of war, was born in that sign. The name of its chief star, Antares, is supposed to signify "rival of Mars." Both are of a similar red color.

Telescopists have one of the finest colored double gems of the sky in Antares. A four or five-inch glass, in steady air, shows an emerald green star hiding in the burning rays of its great red companion. Antares is recognizable at once not only by its brilliance and color, but by the presence of two smaller stars on either side, making a striking triple set, which recalls the appearance of Altair with its two similar attendants, seen in the middle of the eastern sky when Scorpio is on the meridian. The head of Scorpio is conspicuously marked by three stars in a bending row roughly at right angles to that formed by Antares and its companions. The curved body of the imaginary animal bends down toward the southern horizon, and rises further east like a recurved tail tipped with two stars quite close together. This is the "sting" with which the Scorpion avenged Artemis by slaying Orion.

The broad constellation directly above Scorpio, with conspicuous stars arranged in large rows and in pairs, is Ophiuchus. But blended with Ophiuchus is another constellation, Serpens, the latter as drawn by Albrecht Durer in Flamsteed's star atlas, being represented as embracing with its huge coils the arms and body of Ophiuchus, who has for a supplementary name that of the "Serpent Bearer."

All this, remember, is very ancient—a starry scroll from the imagination of the men of thousands of years ago, men who long antedated even Homer, and who could no more have dreamed of the future coming of Alexander or of the founder of Christianity, than we can picture the great heroes and revolutions that are to appear or occur many centuries after our time.

Above, or north, of Ophiuchus, again, is the constellation Hercules, and between that and the pole is a diamond-shaped figure marking the head of Draco, the great serpent who rings the North Star with his coils. Just east of Hercules scintillates the brilliant blue-white Vega, while farther away from him on the western side are the Great Dipper and the glowing star Arcturus, which always recalls patient Job and his uncomforting friends casting up dust in the desert.

Canada Points Way

THE Canadian Pacific Railroad, in its annual report, announces that last year it had net earnings of $2,442,129 from its ocean and coastal steamship lines.

The Canadian Pacific owns and operates steamship lines across the Atlantic and across the Pacific. It is the chief agent for extending Canadian commerce to the entire world.

Why should not our American railroads co-operate in the establishment of steamship lines?

Think of Family

DON'T try to kill or subdue the individuality of the other members of your family.

Those who are of age, or who have learned to think in a logical, practical way have a right to express their opinions.

Give the youngsters, as well, a chance to air their opinions.

It is unjust to be so domineering that you insist everything go as you say, without dispute or argument.

Members of the same family should have a right to make suggestions.

Husband and wife, each, have equal rights to be considered.

The children should have opportunity to arrange and rearrange their own rooms to express their preference.

If a child's room is not to his liking, it is hard to get the child enough interested in it to keep it in order.

Children have ideas as to how and where they want their furnishings placed and they need a place to express individuality.

You want the younger members of your family to love the home and you must give them a time and place to be themselves at home.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

April Song

FAINT green along the valleys
And on the meadows, green;
In woodlands, verdant alleys
Of springtime's fairest sheen.

At dawning how they call me,
The hills so faint, so far!
At twilight they enthrall me,
Mauve mist and silver star.

Through woods and fields I'd follow
The emerald train of spring.
With glad heart like the swallow
On happy, lifted wing.

What joy to follow after
The flute-like notes of song,
To seek the brook's soft laughter
Through golden days and long!

In wine-sweet breath of clover
I drink spring's draught again;
What joy to go, a'rover
Through April's sun and rain!

Tales that are Told

Love's Dilemma

IN THE dimmest corner of the room sat a man and a maid.

It was his chance. Seizing his courage with both hands, he popped the question. It was also her chance. She accepted. Then they sat on one chair, and cooed.

Suddenly the girl drew herself away from him, stared at his face, and frowned.

"Albert," she said, sternly, "you are playing with me! You—"

"Darling," he exclaimed, in alarm, "what is the matter?"

The girl's frown gave way to tears, but she choked back her sobs.

"Oh, Albert," she said, brokenly, "you're m-m-making f-f-faces at me!"

The young man looked relieved.

"I can't help it," he whispered, tenderly. "My glasses are slipping off, and—and I don't want to let go of your dear hands!"

Just His Luck

THEY were talking of luck in the parlor of the local inn, and the conversation drifted on to horse-racing.

"Well, I never 'ave 'ad any luck," declared one man.

"What? Do you mean to say you've never had a winner? Never won anything on the dogs?" gasped another incredibly.

"No," snapped the other. "As far as I'm concerned, the only difference 'tween 'horse-racin' an' dog-racin' is this. The sort of 'orses I back are scratched before the race 'as begun, an' the sort o' dogs I back set down an' scratch themselves 'arf-way through the race."—London Answers.

All Dressed Up

BARNARD BROADBACK, the master tailor, had received a letter which ran:

"Dear Sir—I shall be glad if you will let me know the correct dress for a groom in the afternoon."

Mr. Broadback passed the letter over to the livery department and they replied as follows:

"Bottle-green coat, fawn breeches, silk hat with cockade, dark gloves, etc. Our prices are as follows—"

A week elapsed, and then Barnard Broadback, the master tailor, received another letter from his correspondent, thus:

"I always knew it was expensive to get married, but can't you suggest something a little less elaborate?"—London Answers.

Reading Down and Across

THE office staff were startled to see the head clerk enter the room wearing horn-rimmed spectacles.

Hitherto his eyesight had always been perfect, and, naturally, there were many comments passed about the sudden development.

At last the man who had been in the office even longer than the chief clerk himself ventured to ask the reason for the glasses.

"Well," returned the chief clerk, "if you must know the cause of the trouble before you'll do any work, I'll tell you. I've done so many crossword puzzles that one eye began to see vertical and the other horizontal."

On the Offchance

STROLLING dejectedly up and down the lane, a small boy was crying as if his heart would break. Presently a kindly old gentleman appeared in sight.

"What's the trouble, sonnie?" he asked.

"Mother and father won't take me to the pictures," replied the small boy between his sobs.

"Do they take you if you make that row?" inquired the kindly old man, with a smile.

"Sometimes they do, an' sometimes they don't," was the weary answer. "But it ain't no trouble to yell, anyway."

Isn't It So?

Many a radio is a howling success.

* * *

It is remarkable how much trouble is left in the world when there are so many people out looking for it.

* * *

The people most apt to come out on top are those who get to the bottom of things.

The great trouble with opportunities is that they don't always pick out the right people.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Manhattan is frequently chided by newspaper letter writers for its snippy store clerks and there are some who do approach the job with utter boredom and slight impertinence. It is, of course, a platitude to say "Politeness pays," but all great truths are platitudes.

Happily, the impolite clerk is in the minority, for the simple reason the majority have found politeness does pay and often quite handsomely. There are so many shining examples of the value of courtesy it is a wonder more do not adopt it.

A bright young man at a railroad station news stand was not on the job more than six months before his unfailing tact made impression. Among his hurrying customers was a manufacturing executive. He paid for the young man's stenographic training and made him his secretary at $5,000 a year.

A young girl from Switzerland made herself so valuable at the stocking counter of a Fifth avenue department store she was taken into the buying department and now makes three trips to Europe yearly with all expenses paid and a salary of $15,000 annually.

A department store manager tells me most promotions are the result of gratuitous compliments spoken or written in by customers. Attention is called to their alertness, they are watched and a bigger job is the natural result.

Few enter a clerkship to remain in that post, and almost invariably it is politeness that releases them for bigger things. It is often not with the firm by which they are employed, but with other employers who come in contact with them and make better offers.

A New York merchant prince once said: "There is nothing humble about a clerkship. It excels any other job I know in giving a man or woman a chance to express worth and personality. I have watched thousands, and a good clerk never remains a clerk long."

There is a Western Union office a few steps below Forty-second street on Broadway where dramatic critics scamper after the play to dash off their reviews and dispatch by messenger to their offices. A battery of one-lunged typewriters are at their disposal, and they work at top speed to catch editions. Dramatic reviewing on morning papers is perhaps the most hurried of all newspaper writing.

* * *

The busiest opening night of the season was one where 12 productions opened in a single evening and the total for the week was 22. As a rule the critics select what they consider the most auspicious premiere and the choice is generally the same show.

* * *

The myth has grown that all New York reviewers gave "Abie's Irish Rose" a critical hoot. As a matter of fact, only a few did this. It received quite a lot of praise. Leo Marsh, for instance, who was then on the Morning Telegraph, prophesied it would have a long run.

* * *

Brooklyn Bridge has a quaint old night character called Arab. He is an Oriental who makes it a custom to appear on the bridge every morning at sun-up to face the rising sun and salaam. Then he goes back to his job of "puller in" for a second-hand clothing store on Baxter street.

* * *

The "puller in," incidentally, works on a commission basis. For every customer he yanks over the threshold he is paid 10 per cent of the sale. It is not a despised profession on the East Side. There are many men who have raised large families from proceeds of this sort of work. And a professor of mathematics at a large Eastern college is the son of a "puller in."

* * *

On Mott street there is a little German tailor who has made a snug fortune tailoring clothes for Chinese. He has no Occidental patronage and caters especially to the young sports who want to look like their American brothers on Broadway.

Easter

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Easter is a Christian festival that utilizes the phenomenon of nature to impress upon us a moral truth.

That phenomenon is the springing into new existence of countless forms of life which have been dead for sometime. The moral truth is that we can "rise upon stepping stones of our dead selves" to new and better terms of life.

It is all a question of how you are going to utilize the past. If you construe its buffetings and failures as arguments of despair it will undo your life. If you can manage to forget the past it is possible to renew your hope and go on to better things.

The Salvation Army motto is, "A man may be down, but he is never out." And it is a common saying that it's a long lane that has no turning.

So, in spite of the past and all its disappointments, let us gird ourselves anew for the future.

The shameful death of Christ our Lord and His resurrection have become symbols of the possibilities that are in every man. Not only for the next world is there hope held out for the failure, but it is possible for us to remake our life in this world.

Renewed courage, therefore, and the determination to try again, in spite of all that has happened, is a good resolution for all of us. Arguments of despair crowd upon all of us and there are a thousand reasons for failure. We can blame others and we can blame environment or we can blame ourselves.

What is the difference what is the reason! The main thing is to begin anew!

Now when all nature is renewing its life is a good time for us to renew our own, to renew our purpose and will and to "strengthen the things that remain."

Don't give up! It is a long lane that has no turning and fortune has a way of yielding at last to the determined man.

The most conspicuous successes have come out of terms of failure. O. Henry began his short story writing in prison for an offense he claimed he never committed. John Bunyan owes his immortal work to a sentence in jail. From the blindness of Milton came that inspiring poem of Paradise Lost.

Out of the jaws of defeat can come victory for any man who will determine to go on and make the best of it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Charity

REMEMBER that five dollar bill you gave last Christmas to help out poor Mrs. Smith? And how mad you were when you found she'd spent it on a pink rayon chemise instead of buying groceries and good, warm winter flannels—remember? Well, this article is going to be about that five dollar bill. And about the Charity Blues we all get in January over the money we spent in December.

We're all the same. 'Long about Christmas we get all gummed up with good will and generosity and go around being our brother's keeper and giving him money to buy a nice, new package of rolled oats and maybe a pair of overalls. Then the next thing we know, he's spent it for chewing gum and perfume for his best girl and a striped silk shirt and the first installment on a motorcycle. N' we get mad as blazes and yell to high heaven that we'll never give another cent to charity—s' help us.

I know. I've been one of our leading yellers. But it's all wrong.

Charity is a grand thing. It has a nice effect on your character if you do it graciously. But that's all the profit you have any right to expect. YOU HAVE NO RIGHT TO EXPECT TO BUY A MORTGAGE ON THE OTHER FELLOW'S SOUL FOR A MEASLEY FIVE DOLLAR BILL.

Yet that's exactly what most of us do expect. We feel that the recipient of our largess should show his appreciation by immediately changing his whole attitude toward life, and installing an entirely new mental and moral apparatus. And if he, or she, insists on buying shoddy pink chemises instead of nice, nourishing rolled oats, we act as if he'd done us mortal injury. He hasn't. He's just living and learning, and we have no right to interfere with the process.

PEOPLE ARE WHAT THEY ARE, AND THEY'LL ONLY CHANGE WHEN THEY, THEMSELVES, GET AROUND TO IT.

It's all a matter of growth. One cabbage can't grow for another. One soul can't grow for another. Each cabbage and each soul must do its own growing in its own good time.

Money won't buy green for a cabbage's leaves or starch for its stalk. The cabbage must make these things for itself. By the same token, money won't buy thrift and order and honesty and good sense for human characters. The soul must make these things for itself.

That's an exasperating fact. It peeves our conceit. We like to feel that we're saving souls and molding destinies and putting people in order. We're sure that we could manage other people's lives much better than they can—and much of our charity is an expression of that desire to meddle and boss.

SERVES US RIGHT WHEN WE GET FOOLED!

Stop and think how dreadful it would be if we could assume control of other lives. Folks who preferred to do their own growing would have to go around wrapped in barbed wire and armed with tear bombs to repel the advances of those who wished to collect their spiritual scalps. It's a mercy that most of our charity does fizzle out. If it didn't, we'd soon be raising Cain because God paved the heavenly streets with gold when asphalt would have been so much cheaper.
